Declares Isolation Dooms Democracy.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Staunton, Va., May 4.—Democracy cannot survive in isolation, President Roosevelt declared today in making a national shrine of the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, whose advocacy of the doctrine of intervention led the United States into the world war.

"His ideals of freedom were wide enough to support democracy in all the world," Mr. Roosevelt said. "He taught—and let us never forget it—that democracy could not survive in isolation. We applaud his judgment and his faith. It is the kind of faith for which we have fought before, for the existence of which we are ever ready to fight again."

At the President's right as he spoke in front of the white two story manse of the First Presbyterian church in which Wilson was born on Dec. 28, 1856, was Lord Halifax, the British ambassador.

Cabinet Members Present.

Also on hand in the bright sunshine before the simple dwelling were Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Mrs. Hull, who is president of the Woodrow Wilson Birthplace Foundation; Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, Senators Carter Glass and Harry Flood Byrd, and Gov. James H. Price of Virginia.

Mr. Roosevelt drove 41 miles to the manse, which stands below the church which Wilson's father served as pastor, from the outskirts of Charlottesville, Va., where he spent the week-end in a guest cottage built for him by his secretary and military aide Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson.

After paying homage to the memory of the man who served as assistant secretary of the navy, Mr. Roosevelt boarded a special train which carried him back to Washington in the early evening.

Text of Speech.

"We are meeting here today to dedicate a new shrine of freedom. By this action we are bearing true witness to the faith that is in us—simple faith in the freedom of democracy in the world.

"It is the kind of faith for which we have fought before, for the existence of which we are ever ready to fight again.

"I can think of no more fitting place in all the land for Americans to pledge anew their faith in the democratic way of life than at the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson. In this quiet Presbyterian manse first saw the light of day one whose whole active life was dedicated to the cause of freedom, to the conquest of fear and to the liberation of the eternal spirit of man from every thraldom imposed by force.

Born to High Thinking.

"Woodrow Wilson was fortunate in his birthplace and favored in his parentage and environment. This was a home of plain living and high thinking, and wherever the family moved in the migrations incident to the religious calling of the father, they carried with them ideals which put faith in spiritual values above every material consideration.

"In the tragic conflict which the world witnesses today, and which threatens everything we have loved most as a free people, we see more clearly than ever before the unyielding strength of things of the spirit. All of recorded history bears witness that the human race has made true advancement only as it has appreciated spiritual values. Those unhappy peoples who have placed their sole reliance on the sword have inevitably perished by the sword in the end.

Triumph of the Spirit.

"Physical strength can never permanently withstand the impact of spiritual force.

"Woodrow Wilson's whole career was a triumph of the spiritual over the sordid forces of brute strength. Under his leadership this country made great spiritual progress.

"Of Woodrow Wilson this can be said, that in a time when world councils were dominated by material considerations of greed and gain and revenge, he beheld the vision splendid. That selfish men could not share his vision of a world emancipated from the shackles of force and the arbitrament of the sword in nowise detracts from its splendor. Rather does the indifference of hostile contemporaries enhance the beauty of the vision which he saw and enlarge the glory of the world he sought to rebuild.

"He will be held in everlasting remembrance as a statesman, who, when other men sought revenge and material gain, strove to bring nearer the day which should see the emancipation of conscience from power and the substitution of freedom for force in the government of the world.

"It is good for America that this house in which Woodrow Wilson was born will be preserved for us and for many future generations. In this valley of Virginia it will remind America that his ideals of freedom were wide enough to support democracy in all the world. He taught that democracy could not survive in isolation. We applaud his judgment and his faith."

ANTI-WAR SPIRIT GROWS IN U.S. AS BRITISH FALTER

Roosevelt Hesitates on Convoy Question.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 4.—With Great Britain apparently losing the war, President Roosevelt faces a fateful decision for his country and himself.

The question confronting him is whether to send the armed forces of the United States into the war in a last desperate effort to save the British from defeat. The forces which the British government and American internationalists are imploring him to send immediately are the warships required to convoy arms cargoes to England.

Faces Three Vital Problems.

What makes the question most difficult for the President to decide is the following combination of considerations:

1. The tide of American public sentiment is flowing so strongly against involvement in the war that the President would brook political disaster if he should take a divided nation into the conflict.

2. With Germany stronger in the air than Great Britain and the United States combined, the American navy would be employed to defend Britain at the risk of the loss of warships vital to the defense of the United States.

3. With Hitler in control of Europe and the British on the defensive on all fronts in northern Africa, the near east, and the British Isles themselves, all that American intervention could achieve would be a prolongation of the war for years until American airplanes and an American army could overcome the totalitarians, at a cost of economic exhaustion and probably revolution.

Convoy Pressure Grows.

The President is being subjected daily to increasing pressure to order the convoying of arms cargoes and otherwise to bring the United States into the war as a full fledged belligerent. In the arguments privately addressed to him and publicly spread thru their publicists, the interventionists are proclaiming that the emergency is acute, that not a moment is to be lost if Britain is to be saved.

Mr. Roosevelt appeared yesterday to be on the point of making his great decision when he began preparation of the speech which he delivered today at the dedication of the Woodrow Wilson birthplace at Staunton, Va.

The radio chains were notified to be ready to broadcast an important pronouncement. At the last moment the nation-wide broadcast was abandoned, for the President had decided to make no statement on the war situation at this time. The closest he came to the pronouncement of policy was his praise of Woodrow Wilson for teaching that "democracy cannot survive in isolation."

Pessimism Grips Supporters.

An atmosphere of gloom pervades the administration, The interventionists who predominate in all key positions make no bones of admitting privately that the President has lost control of public opinion, that the country is becoming more and more isolationist. Mr. Roosevelt is being urged to take the aggressive to stem this tide of anti-interventionist sentiment, being assured that he alone can persuade the country that it is to our best interest to get into the war.

The official gloom has been deepened by reports the government has been receiving from its agents abroad on Great Britain's situation in the war. These reports indicate that Britain's plight is desperate—that it is doubtful that the United States could save Britain from defeat were it to get into the war at once as an outright belligerent.

Whole Mediterranean Periled.

The British are threatened with the loss of the entire Mediterranean, from Gibraltar to Suez. The Germans have succeeded in ferrying 30 divisions of troops and equipment from Italy to northern Africa. The undertaking is said to have been accomplished with Italian troop ships operating at night and with few exceptions successfully eluding British warships.

Together with troops now converging upon Egypt from Greece, the Germans are estimated to have a

Slay Executive in Auto with Pretty Model

New York, May 4 (AP).—Harry V. Maxwell, 41 years old, son of one of the nation's big billboard advertising operators, was shot to death today as he sat in a parked car with a pretty blonde model after a night of gaiety.

The girl, identified by Assistant District Attorney Paul Riley as Mary Jane Cassidy, 24, employed at a fashionable dress shop, telephoned police at 5:20 a. m. that Maxwell had died of fright after two robbers held them up.

Almost 10 hours later, however, an autopsy disclosed Maxwell had been shot thru the heart with a revolver. Riley said he apparently had been killed in an attempted holdup.

Maxwell Divorced Twice.

Maxwell was the son of R. C. Maxwell, head of the outdoor advertising agency by the same name, and was office manager for the company in New York. He had been married and divorced twice. His last wife was Gail Morrison, woman golf star.

The couple had parked in front of Miss Cassidy's home in East 81st street, she told Riley, after visiting friends in New Jersey and stopping at a Manhattan night club. They had been parked for half an hour when two men squeezed in beside them, she told Riley. Then she heard a popping noise "like the sound of a cap pistol," she said. "Then I felt Mr. Maxwell slump beside me."

Without a word, the man beside her left and so did the other neither bothering to take her purse which lay on the seat, Miss Cassidy said. Police found $106 in Maxwell's pocket. She said she saw the holdup men climb into a car down the block, but added she caught only one letter and one number of the license plate.

Hails a Taxi Driver.

Believing Maxwell merely had fainted, she attempted to move him from behind the steering wheel, but found this too difficult and hailed a cab driver, who helped her move Maxwell. The cabman said he refused to drive the car, as Miss Cassidy suggested, but followed in his cab to Maxwell's apartment eight blocks away in East 73d street. When they reached the apartment, Miss Cassidy told police, it became apparent the man was dead. She notified police and a city hospital ambulance arrived shortly.

Miss Cassidy was taken to a police station where she remained until late today, telling of the events leading up to the murder.

REDUCE ITALIAN MEAT EATING TO TWICE WEEKLY

ROME, May 4.—Italians now can have meat only twice a week instead of three times as hitherto. Saturday and Sunday are the newly designated "feast days," meat on Mondays now being forbidden.

During May and June there is to be no corn flour available for those whose ration cards call for it. Instead, they are to have rice. The measure was taken, it was believed, to prevent the rationing of bread. The people have been promised that no matter how long the war lasts they will have all the bread they want.

LONDON, May 4 (AP).—Iraq has stopped the flow of oil in the last pipeline to the Mediterranean from the little kingdom's rich oil fields, British dispatches said tonight as fighting in the three day old war in Iraq increased in intensity.

Emir Abdul Ilah.

British bombers in a heavy raid on the Iraqi airdrome at Moascar Rashid disabled 22 planes on the ground and severely damaged buildings; Iraqi artillery shelled the British air base at Habbaniyah, 60 miles west of Bagdad, for the third successive day, and British forces claimed the occupation of the dock area, airport, and power station at Basra, Iraq's chief port.

Issues Call for Peace.

While the fighting thus raged, the deposed regent of Iraq, Emir Abdul Ilah, announced he was preparing to return to Iraq. He called on Iraqi troops to return peacefully to their stations and wait for his restoration of an independent Iraqi government. He issued his proclamation in Palestine.

The second and last Iraq oil pipeline now shut off to the British extended to Haifa, in British mandated Palestine on the Mediterranean. It is at Haifa that the British fleet in the near east has received its chief supply of oil. A dispatch from Bagdad to Vichy, France, said the month old government of Premier Rashid Ali al Gailani had stopped operation of this pipeline.

However, the British have said that whether the Haifa line was stopped or not, they had stored adequate reserves in the Mediterranean area.

Long Shipment Required.

The first pipeline shut down extended to Tripoli, Lebanon, in French mandated Syria. This outlet was closed to the British upon the fall of France last June.

[The British fleet is able to draw oil from the Iraqi fields at Basra, tho this involves a long shipment thru the Persian gulf and the Red sea.]

British planes made many raids on Iraqi gun positions, mechanized units, and troop concentrations outside Habbaniyah today. Numerous direct hits were scored.

Britain Awaits Bitter Debate on War Losses

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 4.—Bitter words of criticism, revelations, and defense of the government's war policy are looked for in the two day debate on the war which will be held in the next sittings of parliament. However, political wiseacres are not agreed as to just how far the latest cabinet shakeup is spiking the guns of government critics.

The appointment of Lord Beaverbrook as minister of state is regarded as highly important, but THE TRIBUNE is unable as yet to discover any one who knows exactly what the appointment means and what tasks will be entrusted to the dynamic newspaper publisher.

Steals Opponents' Thunder.

Hanten Swaffer, who is highly regarded as a political sage, in his column in the weekly publication People today asserts that the latest cabinet changes occurred when "parliament was on the eve of one of the most momentous debates in all its history" and says this undoubtedly will steal considerable thunder from Prime Minister Winston Churchill's bitterest opponents in parliament.

Clement Davis, David Lloyd George's confidant, is among those who have taken the lead in organizing the attack. He recently assembled what Swaffer calls a "ginger group," composed of a dozen persons, including former War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha, Lord Winterton, and Laborite Emmanuel Shinwell, former minister of mines.

It probably will be demanded of Churchill that he reconsider the advisability of formation of an empire cabinet. Lord Beaverbrook's appointment and consolidation of the ministry of transport and shipping into one department undoubtedly are calculated to weaken any criticism of the internal war effort so far as production and overlapping departments are concerned.

New Threat to Egypt.

But it is certain that the house of commons will be told that the Greek campaign was ill planned and that a new threat to Egypt has arisen as a result of the government's error in miscalculation.

As Britain awaited any revelations the debate might produce, George Bernard Shaw, in an interview in the Sunday Chronicle, elaborated on the letter that he and Prof. Gilbert Murray, historian, sent recently to the London Times recommending a bombing truce with Germany.

He asserted the truce would be not a question of pledges but a military expediency, contending that neither side is gaining anything by this new method of warfare.

"If all cities in Britain, Germany, Italy, and America were smashed into heaps of débris, as many of them will be at the present rate and some are already, would any of the belligerents be a day nearer to a decision?" Shaw asked. "All of these acts of diabolical wickedness would have done nothing but gratify at enormous cost the passions which civilized nations should not gratify."

Calls Bombings Fools' Tactics.

Asked if he agreed to the argument frequently made here that bombs "infuriate Londoners" and "cow Berliners" and that the ultimate effect of the bombings would be to make Germany sue for peace, Shaw replied:

"The shortest way to disgrace and defeat is to allow tactics to be dictated by fools who talk like that. We have done our very damndest to Berlin and the Germans have done their very damndest to London. The effect has been the same in both places. The people who are not in bed run for the nearest shelter. They do not yell for peace, as Churchill is not within hearing.

"Besides, when people are running for their lives, do they trouble about international politics? People who are in bed stay there fatalistically and take their chance—leastwise, I do. Police, firemen, the ARP [air raid precautions services], and nurses face the music.

Retaliation Fans Flames.

"In London in peacetime between 300 and 400 people die every day in the course of nature and nothing like that death rate has yet been achieved or likely will be achieved by bombing raids.

"There is demoralization of course—all war is demoralizing. But as demoralization takes the shape of 'give it back to them,' and 'let them have a taste of their own medicine,' the flames are fanned instead of being extinguished.

"The endless series of retaliations finally exhausts both sides, leaving them no step nearer victory. Can any sort of war be more senseless?"

CLAIMS GERMAN ARMS WILL STAY AHEAD OF FOES'

BERLIN, May 4 (AP).—A cheering reichstag tonight heard Adolf Hitler pronounce Germany superior in power to "any conceivable coalition" and declare she will have only one answer to "democratic agitators" who "threaten to throttle" the Nazi state.

Hitler's only reference to the United States which, however, was not named, came near the end of his speech after he had assailed British Prime Minister Churchill and, in a review of the Balkan campaign had put Germany's losses in men killed at little more than 1,000.

"Never Again a 1918."

Hitler said, choosing his words with great care:

"When today democratic agitators of a country which the German people never harmed and whose statement that the German people intend to do so is an absurd lie, threaten to throttle the National Socialist [Nazi] peoples' state with the force of their capitalist system, then there is only one answer:

"The German people will never again experience such a year as 1918.

"The German people will profess more fanatically than ever the axiom that neither force nor time will make us yield, let alone break us.

"They will maintain the superiority of their armament and, under no circumstances, will allow their lead to be reduced.

"If already the German soldier possesses the best weapons in the world he will receive still better ones this year and next. . . ."

Lauds Nazi Working Capacity.

"We are under obligation to incorporate the working capacity of the whole nation into this, the mightiest armament process the world has ever seen.

"The reich and its allies represent in military and, above all, moral aspects a force which is superior to any possible coalition in the world.

"Enemies refused every German offer of peace because it did not conform to their capitalistic interests. Thus, today, we are not only fighting for our own existence but for the liberation of the world from a conspiracy which has subjected the happiness of nations and human beings to its detestable egotism. . . .

"The year 1941 will be inscribed in history as the greatest year of the rise of our nation."

Looks Ahead 1,000 Years.

In concluding his address he declared Germany not only would survive this war but also the next millennium.

The Fuehrer, looking fit but coughing a little, wore a dark gray uniform which contrasted strikingly with Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's light gray.

The Kroll opera house, where the session was held, presented the usual appearance of Nazi enthusiasm but there were few decorations and rain reduced the crowds in the street.

Hitler entered the opera house at one minute past 6 p. m. [11 a. m. Chicago time] and spoke for an hour and 10 minutes—one of the shortest addresses he has ever made before the reichstag.

With his voice being relayed to most of the world by radio, Hitler told the suddenly called reichstag session that these, "the smallest we have had so far," were Germany's losses in the Balkan campaign:

Of the army and SS [Blackshirt élite guards] formations, 57 officers and 1,042 men killed; 181 officers and 3,571 men wounded; 13 officers and 372 men missing. Of the air force, only 10 officers and 42 men killed; 30 officers and 104 men missing.

Frees Croats, Macedonians.

"In the course of the operations against Jugo-Slavia the following number of purely Serbian prisoners, exclusive of all soldiers of German origin as well as Croats and Macedonians, who were for the most part immediately released, were taken: 6,298 officers and 336,864 men," Hitler said.

"The number of Greek prisoners, amounting to 8,000 officers and 210,000 men has not been deemed significant, since they were, inasmuch as the Greek armies were concerned, encircled by the joint German-Italian

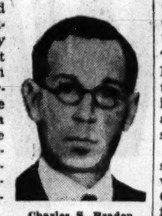
U. S. Must Shun War: Braden; Enter Conflict Now: Conant

'Build Democracy'

America is not at war, it need not go to war, and it must not go, Charles S. Braden, head of the department of history of religion at Northwestern university, yesterday told a large audience at a meeting of the Hyde Park chapter of the America First committee at 5757 University avenue.



Charles S. Braden.

Prof. Braden warned that America's entry into the war would mean a world in which democracy would be only a word in the dictionary. He urged his listeners to write their congressmen, urging passage of the Tobey anticonvoy amendment to the ship seizure bill, which is scheduled for senate action this week.

Not Far from War.

"We are not at war, altho we are certainly not far from it," Prof. Braden said. "Our entry, however, is not inevitable—we can stay out, and we must!

"Here are three reasons why:

"First, wars seldom settle anything—this one assuredly will not.

"Second, our entry will not save democracy—in fact, our entry would likely sacrifice our way of life and create a world in which 'democracy' could be found only in the dictionary.

"Third, we are not prepared for war. A nation divided cannot win in armed conflict and the United States is divided, if ever a country was. More than 80 per cent of Americans do not want to meddle in Europe's troubles, and the efforts of some of the world's ablest propagandists have failed to sway them.

Build Democracy, He Pleads.

"America's best defense is to build democracy at home, to stay behind its own natural barricades," Prof. Braden counseled. "If we do that, democracy will not vanish. When the pendulum starts swinging the other way in Europe, we will be able to lend the helping hand that will be so greatly needed."

Dr. Fred L. Adair, chairman of the Hyde Park chapter, presided at the meeting.

Tonight in Fort Wayne, Ind., Senator Wayland Brooks, Illinois Republican, will address an America First rally. A crowd of more than 5,000 is expected in Shrine auditorium for the meeting.

'Hour Has Struck'

Boston, Mass., May 4 (AP).—President James B. Conant of Harvard university called today for the United States to "fight now" with Britain against the axis, asserting "the hour for action has clearly struck."

James B. Conant.

Dr. Conant, a speaker and worker for the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, declared in a nation-wide broadcast:

"Our best hope of avoiding later battle against desperate odds is to become a naval belligerent now. It is not too late. But the hour for action has clearly struck. I believe the nation is ready to join the fight for freedom."

Negotiated Peace "Fantastic."

Conant said the belief of "some intelligent" persons in this country that the war may be ended by a "negotiated peace" was "utterly fantastic" to any one who lately has been in England.

He returned from England in mid-April after about two months there as head of a three man group named to "exchange scientific information vital to the United States and Great Britain." In England he was on a special mission for President Roosevelt. Since his return he has an outspoken advocate of war measures.

A Question of 'When?'

He said that it seemed inevitable to him that "unless we are willing to yield the control of this hemisphere to the axis powers, this country must sooner or later fight," and added:

"If we would preserve our freedom, the question before us is not: 'Shall America fight?' The question before us is: 'When shall America fight?'

"I believe we should fight now. For while there seems little chance that the English island will be immediately overrun, there is another critical danger before us—on the Atlantic ocean."

British Radio Tells of 26 U. S. Arms Ships at Suez

New York, May 4 (AP).—The report that 26 American ships loaded with munitions have arrived at Suez was broadcast by the British radio today. The British radio said: "According to reports reaching London last night, 26 American ships loaded with war material, have reached Port Suez."

Chinese Claim Recapture of Vital Port from Japanese

HONGKONG, May 4 (AP).—The Chinese Central News agency reported today that Chinese forces yesterday recaptured Wenchow, vital port in southern Chekiang province.

PRESSURE IS PUT ON SIAM BY U. S., STATES MINISTER

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, May 4 (AP).—Vilas Osatananda, minister without portfolio in the Thailand [Siam] government, expressed belief today that the United States is applying economic pressure on Thailand.

"Apparently the American government is afraid Thailand has entered on too close relations with Japan and, therefore, is restricting our purchases," said Osatananda, who is here on business.

He declared 10 United States made airplanes purchased by Thailand had been held up at Manila, a $150,000 oil shipment had been canceled, and that "it is virtually impossible to purchase Diesel oil, iron bars, and so forth from America now."

Osatananda denied Thailand had fallen under Japanese influence and said his country asks only to be let alone.

BAN ON 'AMERICA FIRST' ASSAILED BY MIAMI PAPER

Violates Constitutional Guarantee, Says Editor.

Miami, Fla., May 4 [Special].—Miami and Dade county commissioners were denounced in an editorial by the Miami Herald today for refusing to permit a rally of the America First committee in the courthouse or in Bay Front park. The newspaper said the commissioners violated the first amendment to the United States constitution, which guarantees the right of assembly and free speech.

Phil La Follette.

America First headquarters in Chicago instructed Page Hufty of Palm Beach, Florida state director of America First, to come to Miami and take charge of the committee's fight for the right to express its views against war. Hufty arrived here tonight.

City commissioners are withholding action on a request for a permit to use Bay Front park on May 17 for an America First rally and speech by Phil La Follette, former governor of Wisconsin, pending approval of his text. Hufty will fight the censorship attempt. La Follette said in New York today that he will speak here May 17 even if he has to use a farmer's field.

Breeder of Intolerance.

"One reason most thinking people hate war," said the Herald editorial, "is that it invariably breeds a wave of intolerance and bigotry among the very people who are clamoring so vociferously to save the world for democracy. A fair sample of this sort of mental hobbling was found right here in Miami last week when both city and county commissioners denied the right of assembly and free speech to members of the America First committee as expressly provided for in the first amendment to the constitution of the United States.

"To make matters worse, they could think of no better reason for refusing the use of the courtroom and a public park to citizens holding opinions at variance with their own than to brand the America First organization as subversive.

Sense of Fairness Gone.

"Certainly no organization which advocated arming and protection of its own country first ever was accused of being subversive. But unfortunately, we began to lose all sense of fairness and tolerance in direct proportion to our involvement in the present world war.

"One of our Dade county commissioners who voted against providing a proper meeting place for the America First committee happens to be chairman of the Miami chapter of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. In this capacity, he staged a public appearance for Douglas Fairbanks Jr. under auspices of his committee in Bay Front park last winter.

"What then about an equally conscientious American who thinks we should stay out of this war? By what possible standard of ethics or fair dealing can he be refused the same privilege accorded Fairbanks?

"The Miami incident is probably the beginning of similar attempts to stifle those who speak in opposition to our 'hell bent for war' program. Conceding the possibility that we may be wrong, our imagination can hardly be stretched to the point where we could consider Gen. Robert E. Wood, Hanford MacNider, Charles Lindbergh, Alice Longworth, Al Williams, Hugh Johnson, Gen. T. S. Hammond, and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker subversive citizens of the U. S. A."

G. O. P. ISN'T BACKING WILLKIE'S PLEDGE ON CONVOYS, NYE SAYS

Washington, D. C., May 5 (AP).—Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], asserted today that Wendell L. Willkie, was not representing the preponderance of sentiment in the Republican party in pledging his support for any move President Roosevelt might take to insure the delivery of American goods to Britain.

Willkie told reporters yesterday that he was convinced the present method of patrolling the sea lanes was inadequate, and declared that he was "absolutely in favor of delivering the goods, whether it be by convoy, airplane accompaniment or any other method deemed best."

Nye said he doubted that Willkie's pledge meant much as far as most Republicans were concerned.

"What is this, some more 'campaign oratory'?" Nye asked. "Willkie has told the world that what he says, at times, is only campaign oratory. The President will do well to discount any pledge that he makes now."

U. S. WAR OUTPUT TO PASS GERMAN, WILLKIE CLAIM

Nashville, Tenn., May 4 (AP).—In an address ostensibly intended as a reply to one made by Charles A. Lindbergh in St. Louis last night, Wendell L. Willkie said here today that "within 90 days, or at the most within six months, the United States will be turning out more armor and armament than Germany."

Without mentioning Lindbergh by name, the 1940 Presidential candidate said a man spoke at St. Louis yesterday who was "wholly without experience in politics or in combat and who hasn't visited the island of Britain in two years."

Lindbergh, in a speech before an America First committee rally, said America is not prepared to wage war abroad successfully, and that no matter how many planes the United States builds and sends to England, this country cannot make the British Isles stronger than Germany in military aviation.

Willkie, addressing a crowd of 15,000 at the dedication of a new aircraft plant here, foresaw "victory for liberty" if England can add superiority in the air to dominance on the seas.

WAR ADVOCATES ARE SABOTEURS, CLARK CHARGES

Fulfill Pledges of Peace, Senator Pleads.

BY THOMAS MORROW.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 4.—More than 6,000 persons gathered in Cadle tabernacle here this afternoon and heard Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] denounce the war mongers as saboteurs of liberty who "wrap themselves in the mantle of respectability and constantly strive to involve the United States in war."

Sen. B. C. Clark.

Two blocks down the street in Tomlinson hall a competing rally was held. Here the Defenders of Democracy, local organization which urges all out aid to Britain including war, attracted 700.

Officials of the local America First committee, sponsoring organization of the Clark speech, saw the comparative results as an eight to one vote against involvement in European wars. Both meetings were held in competition to a circus and midsummer heat which drove many to the highways and the parks.

Keep Peace Pledge, He Urges.

Clark's audience, eagerly attentive, interrupted with applause when the senator urged his listeners to petition the President to keep his campaign promises of peace. He pleaded that "We raise the voice of that great majority of Americans who are opposed to war against those last one or two irremediable steps which make it too late to turn back."

In discussing war mongers, Clark told his audience that they are divided into two sections. One division, the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, he explained, is headed by Ernest W. Gibson Jr., and seeks to get the country into war thru indirection by urging the use of convoys. He pointed out that the other section—the Fight for Freedom committee—openly demands involvement.

"This section of the old game," said Clark of the Fight for Freedom committee, "is headed ostensibly by a man who, to his shame, be it said in this connection, is an eminent churchman. These people have removed their masks and now declare openly for war.

Assails Other Leaders.

"They are nominally under the leadership of Bishop Hobson of Ohio [Bishop Henry W. Hobson, Episcopalian, of Cincinnati] but actually under the ownership of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"The treasurer is Mr. Wayne Johnson, late chairman of the Democratic national finance committee and former general counsel for the internal revenue department. His clients have probably received more tax favors from the government in the last 22 years than all the other citizens in the United States combined.

"The great radio spokesman of the group is Mr. James P. Warburg, an international banker of great repute, a man who was not even born in the United States. He was fortunate in being brought to this country from Germany in his youth."

Rakes "Huckster of Blood."

Senator Clark recalled that Warburg recently termed "quitters" the people of the United States opposed to war. He, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Senators Burton K. Wheeler and Gerald P. Nye were included in this classification, the speaker said.

"I resent this insinuation from this huckster of other men's blood," Clark continued. "As the inheritor of the noble traditions of this land, I gladly quit an important public position to wear the uniform of my country over seas. Mr. Warburg at the finest military age spent the war period in making money as an employé of a railroad and an officer of a Washington bank."

Then Clark turned to the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies in his discussion of war mongers. He termed the members dangerous to the United States.

Cites White's Retirement.

"Poor old William Allen White" [former head of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies], Clark continued, "splendid gentleman and patriot that he is, was kicked out when he restated the doctrine upon which he had originally been enticed into lending his fine name, namely the 'Yanks are not coming,' and that he favored aid to England only by measures 'short of war.' Ernest Gibson was taken up as a shadow boxer behind whom many form the lines of the small but influential minority in this country who know exactly what they want to do—namely, to drag us into war.

"White went out. Gibson is still dangling on their string like a dummy, cruising the country and reading speeches which they have prepared for him in favor of the use of the United States navy to convoy merchant ships to Great Britain—which means war."

The speaker warned that if the war mongers have their way and the United States is plunged into the European conflict the country will bid farewell to freedom. Liberty and all other privileges cherished under democracy, Clark declared, will disappear if war comes.

At Brink of War, He Says.

"Suffice it to say," he told his audience, "that those small decisions, which the American people have been deceived into believing either pacific or inconsequential, have in their tragic cumulative effect brought us to the very brink of war.

"The masks have finally been removed and the war party, having hitherto achieved its aims by deception and misdirection, now shows its face in all its revealing ugliness. Its watchword is now: 'Forward into war, forward into the abyss,' like that almost fabulous Emperor Christophe of Haiti who lined up a regiment of artillery on the ramparts of his mountain fortress and by his sole command sent them plunging to death in the chasm below."

Clark pointed out that the last war cost approximately 60 billion dollars, and warned that participation in the present European conflict likely would use up a predominant portion of the total capital assets of the entire country. He urged that the United States build an impregnable defense and tend to domestic problems.

Assails Alien Isms.

"For myself," the speaker declared, "I abhor the hideous conceptions of Nazism, Facism, and communism—all ideas utterly alien and repugnant to our whole scheme of government and decency and life.

"I abhor Hitler. I abhor his bestial treatment of the Jews and his brutal and inhuman treatment of the Christians of Germany—that nation where valiant battles for religious toleration were once waged on many fields.

"I despise Hitler and all his bestial ilk. But I despise little less those tory statesmen of Great Britain and France who by their ruthless policies in disregarding the provisions of the Versailles treaty as to their own disarmament, and by their economic oppression of Germany, deliberately broke down the liberal government established in Germany under the Weimar constitution.

"That liberalism in Germany failed is a responsibility which must rest in a large degree upon that group of callous, cold hearted statesmen who for many years controled the destinies of France and Great Britain and of all their one-time Balkan and eastern European allies."

Clark then referred to the plank in the Democratic platform which said flatly that the United States would not participate in European wars. He recalled the oft-repeated peace pledges made both by President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie while they were candidates for the Presidency.

"Yet within six months of the election," Clark continued, "I have lived to see the exact words of the Democratic platform, upon which the President and our party appealed to the country and won the election, voted down by a partisan majority in the United States senate when I offered it word for word as a declaration of national principle. To some men a platform is something to get in on, but not to stand on after you are elected. Such has never been my notion of political morality and I hope it never will be."

British-Iraqi Battle Rages On

Captions indicate important developments in fighting in Iraq, source of British oil supply, yesterday. The Iraquis shut off the pipe line supplying oil for the British fleet, but the British announced they had stored large reserves. The fleet is able to draw from the Iraq fields at Basra, altho this entails long shipment thru the Persian gulf.

4 RETIRED ADMIRALS, 13 OTHERS DISPUTE LINDBERGH WAR VIEW

New York, May 4 [Special].—Four retired admirals joined here today with 13 other individuals, describing themselves as students of military affairs and world politics, in contradicting Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has become the leading popular target of interventionist critics.

The group headed by Admiral William V. Pratt, 72 years old; Admiral William H. Standley, 68; Vice Admiral William L. Rodgers, 76, and Read Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, 66, all retired, issued a statement designed to refute Col. Lindbergh's position that Britain already virtually has lost the war beyond recovery despite any aid the United States might give at the 11th hour.

While admitting that the British outlook is "grave," the signers of the statement said, "we believe such assertions unwarranted by the available evidence." The statement set forth reasons for their "joint and considered opinion that there is no warrant for presupposing a German victory."

The signers concluded that "even if it is true—which we deny—that Britain is destined to lose the war, it is imperative that Hitler's victory be as long delayed and as costly as possible."

In addition to the admirals, other signers of the statement include, Dr. James P. Baxter III., president of Williams college; Clarence D. Chamberlin, aviator; Walter Millis, author and journalist; and Raymond Gram Swing, author and radio commentator.

Called 'Huckster of Men's Blood' by Clark.

New York, May 4 [Special].—James Paul Warburg, New York banker, interventionist, and speaker for the pro-war Fight for Freedom committee, who was denounced as a "huckster of other men's blood" by Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] in a speech in Indianapolis today, is a member of an old German banking family which was established in Hamburg in the 16th century.

Jas. P. Warburg.

Warburg has made speeches attacking Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and others for their efforts to keep the United States out of war. His wealth, and the family's, give his words importance in the east, where the main strength of the Fight for Freedom group is centered.

Few records of the Warburgs in their early years in Hamburg are available. By 1798, however, they had started the firm of M. M. Warburg & Co., and thereafter were powerful in European financial circles. Their influence in America dates back only to the early 1890s, when two members of the family settled in New York.

Marriage Links Fortunes.

One of these was Paul Moritz Warburg, father of James Paul. The other was Felix Moritz Warburg, a brother of Paul Moritz. In 1894 Paul Moritz was married to a daughter of Solomon Loeb, thus linking the fortunes of the Warburgs to the great banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Felix Moritz Warburg, in the 1890s, married Frieda Schiff, daughter of another wealthy banker, Jacob Schiff.

While the two Warburg brothers of one generation back were building their fortunes in America, two other brothers, Max and Fritz, remained in Hamburg. In 1929 a new firm, Warburg & Co., was formed in Amsterdam, with members of the Hamburg and New York branches of the family on its advisory committee.

Father on Reserve Board.

This new firm represented the interests of the International Manhattan company, the securities organization of the International Acceptance bank and the Bank of the Manhattan company, in all of which the family had large holdings.

Paul Moritz Warburg, who was born in 1868, became an American citizen in 1911. In 1914 President Wilson appointed him a member of the federal reserve board, on which he served for four years. He declined reappointment, stating that some persons had raised the issue of his family connections in Germany. He was, however, a member of the federal reserve advisory council from 1921 to 1925.

Paul Moritz Warburg was the founder of the International Acceptance bank and of the International Acceptance Trust company. He was a director of several large corporations, including Western Union and the Union Pacific railroad. He died in 1932, leaving one son, James Paul Warburg, the present interventionist, and a daughter, Bettina.

Brother Becomes Citizen.

Felix Moritz, the other brother who emigrated to America, became a citizen in 1900. Before his death in 1937 he had given away an estimated 13 million dollars to philanthropies. He left four sons and a daughter. Two of his sons, Paul Felix and Frederick Marcus, are important figures in finance, only slightly overshadowed by James Paul Warburg.

James Paul, born in Hamburg in 1896 and brought to America as an infant, was graduated from Harvard university in 1917. He has been extensively in politics and was an early member of the Roosevelt brain trust. At the London economic conference in 1933 he was a monetary adviser to the American representatives. Later in the same year he broke with the President and attacked his money policies, but was back on the Roosevelt band wagon in 1936.

Director of Railroads.

He is a director of the Union Pacific railroad, the Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad, the Oregon Short Line railroad, the Polaroid corporation, and the Alfol Insulation company. He has been an officer of the International Acceptance bank, the International Manhattan company, and the Bank of Manhattan company. He has homes at Bydale, Greenwich, Conn., and at 34 East 70th street, New York.

His cousin, Paul Felix Warburg, is 37 years old. He is a partner in J. S. Bache & Co., stock and commodity brokers. He is a director of the County Trust company of New York and of the Staten Island Rapid Transit company.

The other cousin, Frederick Marcus Warburg, born in 1897, is a Kuhn, Loeb & Co. partner. His earlier connections included M. M. Warburg & Co. of Hamburg and Lehman Brothers, New York banking house.

LA GUARDIA URGES DRAFT AGE LIMITS BE FIXED AT 18-22

New York, May 4 (AP).—Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, writing in a New York newspaper, urged today that the ages for selective service be changed to 18 to 22, inclusive, and criticized the administration of the draft law.

The revision of age limits, he said, "would prevent dislocation of families and would cause little if any disturbance to industry, agriculture, business, and education."

La Guardia said that contrary to basic intentions of the act, men already trained in military services had been drafted for elementary training; seasonal workers and students were not given proper consideration; skilled workers such as mechanics were being removed from industry, and unusually high numbers were being deferred because of minor physical deficiencies and as a result of hasty diagnosis.

FUEHRER AGAIN DEFIES FOES IN REICHSTAG TALK

Calls Germany Stronger than Any Coalition.

operations and thereby forced to capitulate. The Greek prisoners were also released at once, or will be, because of the bravery which they have shown thruout.

"The number of Englishmen, Australians, and New Zealanders taken prisoner exceeds 9,000 officers and men. The booty cannot as yet even be approximately estimated.

The Share of Booty.

"The share of booty due to the operations of the German forces, according to the estimate at present available, amounts to more than 500,000 rifles, far more than 1,000 cannon, many thousands of machine guns, antiaircraft weapons, trench mortars, numerous vehicles and large amounts of ammunition and equipment.

"To this I would like to add the amount of tonnage sunk by the air forces. Seventy-five ships totaling 400,000 tons were destroyed; 147 ships, totaling 700,000 tons, were damaged.

"These results were achieved by the following German forces. For the operations on the southeast 31 full and two half divisions [roughly 480,000 men] were set apart in all. The disposition of these forces preparatory to the advance was completed in seven days.

Units Actually in Fight.

"Of these, the following actually took part in the fighting: 11 infantry and Alpine divisions, 6 tank divisions, and 3 full and 2 half mechanized divisions of the army and armed SS [blackshirt élite guard] troops.

"Of these forces, 11 were engaged in more than six days of fighting and ten in less.

"Eleven detachments [165,000 men] were not engaged actively at all.

"Before the termination of operations in Greece, three detachments could already be relieved. Further detachments were not brought up from the rear because they were not needed and two detachments were stopped in the process of unloading.

"Only five detachments of these took part in the fighting with the British. Of the three tank divisions included in these figures, only two saw action. The third was already halted in the course of operations and brought back because it was no longer needed.

Troops Facing the British.

"In conclusion, I should like to point out that in actual fact only two tank divisions and one Alpine division and the SS bodyguards were opposed to the English and Anzac forces.

Declaring the "everlasting truth" was that Britain had promised too much and done too little, Hitler shouted that Churchill had committed "the greatest strategical error of this war by thinking that Italian reverses in Africa had made it timely to transfer the war scene to Greece."

With great emphasis he declared Italy never had requested German help, that "Mussolini never asked me for a single division."

Hitler called Churchill "the most bloodthirsty amateur strategist history has ever known."

There was no apparent appeal directly to the British people, but his auditors, nevertheless, could not escape the impression that the German leader might have had his eye on the impending vote of confidence which Churchill faces in London.

Time and again, interspersed with the review of German victories in the Balkans, Hitler returned to his assault on Churchill.

Never before had the Fuehrer, at this moment flushed by military victories, made the war such a personal matter between him and the British prime minister.

He accused Churchill of spurning German peace proposals. He called him a man who involved innocent nations in hopeless wars.

"Decided on War in Balkans."

At one point in the address Hitler said:

"Churchill's abominable state of mind gave birth to decisions to transform the Balkans into a theater of war. For almost five years this man has been chasing around Europe like a madman in search of something he could set on fire.

"Unfortunately he again and again finds hirelings to open the gates of their countries to this international incendiarism."

At another point Hitler declared:

"If another man had experienced as many defeats as a politician, as many catastrophes as a soldier, he would not have remained in office six months unless he also possessed the sole gift which Mr. Churchill possesses, namely, the gift of lying with a pious expression on his face, and of distorting the truth until finally glorious victories are made out of the most terrible defeats."

Loses on Two Fronts.

Of the Balkan and African campaigns, Hitler said that Churchill, "once more a hopeless dabbler in strategy, thus managed to lose in two theaters of war at one blow.

"The fact that this man, who in any other country would be courtmartialed, gains fresh admiration as prime minister in his own," he went on, "cannot be construed as an expression of magnanimity such as accorded by Roman senators to generals honorably defeated in battle; it merely is proof of that perpetual blindness with which the gods afflict those whom they are about to destroy."

Another biting fling at Churchill was:

"As a German and a soldier I consider it unworthy ever to revile the brave enemy. But Churchill, who started this conflict, is trying, just as he did in the case of Norway and Dunkirk, to say something which could be turned around so as to resemble success. I do no consider this honorable, but in his case I think understandable."

Hits Sacrifices of Little Peoples.

"Seldom has greater cynicism been displayed toward sacrifices of small peoples than in the case of the Serbians.

"For to incite nations to war as supporters and then to declare that from the very outset he did not believe in victory but that the sole object was to force another who did not wish to fight in that theater of war, to take up the fight there—that is probably the most disgraceful thing that ever occurred in world history."

After reviewing the Balkan campaign, Hitler turned his thought to the immediate future.

He indicated that German women would be called upon to make a greater war effort. He said sacrifices would be ever greater and that he "thinks the German girl and woman can make additional contribution."

Hitler observed that Germany is in a position to mobilize labor of more than half the continent.

Referring to his proposals for peace and their rejection, Hitler asserted that democratic leaders on both sides of the Atlantic, "supported by international Jewry," preferred war to any program which might restore peace.

Hitler expressed regret that artillery and air bombs had to destroy the years-long labor of civilization but asserted that from the German viewpoint this was the only course.

He launched into a quick review of the incidents of the war. He recalled the manner in which the Germans forced the British out of Norway.

There followed, he said, "the most destructive battle in history, in the course of which France was conquered." He said that after the French campaign he called the reichstag to make another peace proposal to the world.

Called "a Sign of Weakness."

"My peace suggestions were interpreted as a sign of weakness," Hitler said.

He asserted that the democratic press agitated for continuation of the war, ridiculing what he said were the hopes of certain "democratic war agitators that the inadequate British air force" could turn the tide of the war.

"They got the war they wanted," he declared. "But we were firmly determined. We were prepared to answer every British bomb with one hundred."

With Poland, France, and Norway out of the way, he said "war agitators" next cast their eyes upon the Balkans.

He declared England and France for a number of years had laid plans to make the southeast a war zone in the event of hostilities with Germany. British Prime Minister Churchill and former French Premier Paul Reynaud, he added, were among the chief conspirators.

Outlines Balkan Policies.

Hitler then outlined Germany's Balkan policies. He said:

FIRST—Germany has no territorial aspirations in that direction.

SECOND—It was the reich's years-long program to coöperate economically with the Balkans. In this region, Hitler said England and America could figure only as sellers, not purchasers, and that neither country could maintain balanced economic relations with the southeast.

THIRD—Germany's chief political interest in the Balkans was to aid them in maintaining domestic tranquility so, in that atmosphere, they could work out their economic and social destinies.

Hitler said British guarantees to the Balkan states appeared as a disturbing element. Greece and Rumania, he averred, paid dearly for accepting such guarantees and he distinguished sharply between the Greek people and their pro-British government.

Gave Time to Study Fate.

Hitler asserted the slow beginning of the war in Greece gave the Athens government ample time to study the consequences of its policies. In this quiet period, he recalled, he had warned the British they would be struck wherever they appeared.

"You of the German reichstag know my years-long effort to coöperate on a friendly basis with Jugo-Slavia," he said.

Then the Fuehrer recalled what he described as favorable terms under which Jugo-Slavia was invited into the tripartite pact [Germany, Italy, and Japan]. He said Germany guaranteed the country's territorial integrity and promised not to send troops thru the land.

"We all were startled by reports of the Belgrade coup which upset relations with Germany," he said.

"God knows I wanted peace," Hitler declared.

"But under the circumstances I was forced to the decision to use the means which, thank God, we possessed to protect the reich's interests in this region."

[Hitler said that Jugo-Slavia fell victim to British intrigue "in contrast to Turkey"—a hint that Turkey will desert Great Britain as an ally.]

Danube "Open for All Time."

One result of the Balkan action is that the Danube is "open for all time as a free transportation route," Hitler continued.

He said Germany had made only moderate changes in her southern border by this campaign and is "happy an independent Croatia has been created and other peoples are in a position to realize just ethnological aspirations."

Goering, as president of the council, opened and closed the session. At his signal from the speaker's rostrum all reichstag members rose and gave the Nazi salute as Hitler arrived. While the Fuehrer stood with bowed head, Goering paid tribute to members who had died since the last meeting.

Among visitors in the well filled diplomatic section were Donald R. Heath, first secretary of the American embassy; Axis Ambassadors Dino Alfieri of Italy and Hiroshi Oshima of Japan; German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey.

German Strategy for Balkan Campaign Disclosed by Hitler

BERLIN, May 4.—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, who according to Reichsmarshal Goering has been the guiding spirit of German military strategy in this war, today in his speech to the reichstag told the German people the technical story of the Balkan campaign.

"The general directions for operations issued by me to the high command of the German forces on March 27 confronted the army and the air force with a formidable task," he said.

"By a mere turn of the hand a new additional campaign had to be prepared. Units, which had already arrived, had to be moved about. Supplies of armaments had to be assured and the air force had to occupy numerous improvised airports, which, in part, were still under water. Without the sympathetic assistance of Hungary and the extremely loyal attitude of Rumania it would have been very difficult to carry out my orders in the short time envisaged.

Program for Attacks.

"I fixed April 6 as the day on which the attack was to begin. On this day our southern army, stationed in Bulgaria, was ready to attack. The other armies were to proceed to attack directly they were ready to do so. The dates fixed for this were the 8th, 10th, and 11th of April, respectively.

"The main plan of the operations was first to proceed with an army coming from Bulgaria against Thrace and Greece in the direction of the Aegean sea. The main striking strength of this army lay on its right wing, which was to force a passage thru to Salonika by using mountain divisions and a division of tanks, second to thrust forward with a second army in the direction of Skoplje [Jugo-Slavia] with the objective of establishing contact as speedily as possible with the Italian forces advancing from Albania.

"These two operations were to begin on the sixth of April.

Drive Toward Nish.

"A further operation, beginning on the eighth, provided for the break thru of an army from Bulgaria in the general direction of Nish [Jugo-Slavia] with the objective of reaching the neighborhood of Belgrade. In conjunction with this a German army corps was to occupy the Banat [adjoining Hungary] on the 10th from where it was to proceed to Belgrade from the north.

"On April 11 an army getting into battle formation in Carinthia and Styria [Austria] and thru western Hungary was to proceed to attack in the direction of Zagreb, Sarajevo, and Belgrade.

"In connection with these operations nonbinding agreements had been made with our allies, Italy and Hungary. The Italian armed forces intended to proceed from their Julian front along the [Dalmatian] coast in the direction of Albania to join hands with these detachments from Albania by way of Scutari, also to break thru the Jugo-Slav frontier positions on the Jugo-Slav-Albanian frontier opposite Skoplje, thus to establish contact with the German army advancing there and finally thru the Greek front in Albania itself and, if possible to encircle and force it back toward the sea. In connection with this the Dalmatian and Ionic Islands were to be occupied and all other bases captured.

"Agreements as to coöperation had also been reached between the two air forces.

Von List in Macedonia.

"The command of the German armies operating against Macedonia and Greece was placed in the hands of Field Marshal von List, who had already particularly distinguished himself in previous campaigns.

"The forces advancing against Jugo-Slavia from the southeast of Germany and from Hungary were commanded by Col. Gen. Von Weiths. He, too, in a very short time reached his objective with the forces under his command.

"The armies and SS detachments operating under Field Marshal Von Brauchitsch as general in chief and the chief of the general staff, Col. Gen. Halder, forced the Greek army in Macedonia to capitulate after only five days, established contact with the Italian forces advancing from Albania, occupied Salonika, forced Serbia to capitulate after twelve days and thus generally prepared the way for the difficult and glorious break thru by way of Larissa to Athens.

"These operations were crowned by the occupation of the Peloponnesus and numerous Greek islands.

The Air Operations.

The air force, under the personal command of the reichsmarshal [Goering] and of the chief of his general staff, Gen. Jeschonnek, was divided into two main groups commanded by Col. Gen. Loehr and Gen von Richtofen.

"It was their task, first to shatter the enemy air force and to smash its ground organizations; second, to attack every important military objective in the conspirators' headquarters, Belgrade, thus eliminating it from the very outset; third, by every manner of active coöperation everywhere to support the fighting German troops by air and ground defense units to break thru the enemy's resistance, to impede the enemy's flight and to prevent, as far as possible, his subsequent embarkation and to render valuable assistance to the operations of the army by air-borne and parachute units.

"Members of the reichstag: the German armed forces have truly surpassed themselves in this campaign. . . . There is only one way of characterizing this campaign.

Germans Use Light Tank Carrying 2 Pounder Gun

CAIRO, Egypt, May 4.—A British officer said today the Germans introduced two innovations in the campaign in Greece—light tanks of great speed equipped with two pounder cannon, and parachutes that may have been made to open by an explosive gust. Parachutists near the Corinth canal were said to have dropped from an unusually low altitude.

Six More U.S. Flyers Join Observer Staff in Africa

CAIRO, Egypt, May 4 (AP).—The arrival here of Lts. Lewis B. Meng and William W. Momyer of the United States army air corps, accompanied by four flying sergeants, brings to more than a score the number of American army and navy observers with the British North African forces.

FORCE AXIS ARMY TO A STANDSTILL IN TOBRUK BATTLE

British Get Some Help from a Sandstorm.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 4 (AP).—Axis forces tonight still held a small sector in the western corner of Tobruk's outer defenses after their latest tank assault was driven back by British artillery fire yesterday.

The British high command said the repulse of this assault "definitely brought to a standstill" axis efforts to wrest the encircled port from its imperial defenders.

A further lull in the fighting came today with a raging sandstorm which swept over the desert, reducing visibility in some places to 10 yards.

Lull Won't Last Long.

But the high command did not expect the inactivity to last long. It said the Germans and Italians probably would renew their determined assaults to wrest the strategic port, 80 miles west of the Egyptian frontier, from the hands of the British defenders.

[The German high command said repeated counterthrusts by British tanks had been hurled back by axis troops, which were declared to be still holding their positions in the Tobruk fortifications. The Germans said 16 British tanks had been destroyed in recent days.]

Second Sortie by British.

In the Sollum area, along the Egyptian-Libyan border, mechanized forces of the army of the Nile made another encircling raid into axis positions, inflicting casualties and capturing prisoners.

It was the second such sortie in two days against the stalled Suez bound axis drive, the first having been made Friday when a British force cut behind the Germans and Italians and returned with a "considerable body" of axis troops.

On the East African front, another important position was captured yesterday by imperial columns advancing upon Amba Alaji, 280 miles northeast of Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia.

In another phase of the war, British bombers scored direct hits on destroyers and three merchant vessels in an attack on an axis convoy in the Mediterranean.

At Benina, one of the main landing fields for axis airborne troops near Bengazi, two Junkers transports were destroyed. In Bengazi itself large fires and explosions were started among military targets.

Italians Bomb Cruiser.

ROME, May 4 (AP).—Direct hits on a British cruiser with heavy caliber bombs was claimed by the Italian high command today. The attack took place in the western Mediterranean, indicating that the cruiser might have been attacked to a squadron attempting to cut the axis flow of supplies to its North African army.

Matruh in Egypt, railhead for the British desert forces, was bombed by axis planes.

Nazis Sink Ship at Crete.

BERLIN, May 4 (AP). — German planes sank a 10,000 ton merchant ship in Suda harbor, island of Crete, and seriously damaged another, the German high command said today.

New Attack on Malta.

VALETTA, Malta, May 4 (AP).—Axis warplanes attacked this British naval island base in two heavy overnight raids, causing damage to civilian property and a hospital. Two bombers were shot down.

70 JACKETS STOLEN.

DARLAN REPORTS TO PETAIN AFTER HASTY PARIS TRIP

Believe Nazis Submit New Proposals.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, May 4.—Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan, who is Chief of State Marshal Petain's most trusted lieutenant, returned to Vichy from Paris today and spent the afternoon conferring with his chief.

Indications were that important communications had been confided to him in conferences with Otto Abetz, the Nazi ambassador, who had just returned to Paris after consultations in Berlin.

Bearer of Proposals?

Darlan left Vichy at 7 a. m. yesterday so suddenly that a scheduled cabinet meeting was postponed. His equally hasty return gave the impression that he was bringing back proposals from the reich in the form of future collaboration.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Vichy reported some diplomatic circles said Darlan had received from Abetz a "polite ultimatum" calling for the return of Pierre Laval to the Vichy government. These circles understood that Germans in Paris have made it clear to Darlan that they want representation in the Vichy government. The Germans, it was said, want to be installed in Paris either under Laval or a Laval man.]

There were reports that after Darlan's consultations with Petain, Darlan will return immediately to Paris. The hasty resumption of French-German negotiations coincided with Adolf Hitler's speech during which he announced, apparently for American consumption, that the German soldier would be even better armed next year.

One Phase Concluded.

Tonight's Le Temps declared the European phase of the war is in its concluding phase and the conflict now concerns destruction of British imperialism.

Le Temps referred subsequently to "vast operations on land and sea undertaken by the British without sufficient preparation and without taking account of the possibilities of the adversary."

Le Temps also declared that the British defeat is not only military but also diplomacy was usually several weeks and sometimes months behind the diplomacy of the axis.

82-TON BOMBER INSURANCE COSTS $82,000 A MINUTE

Santa Monica, Cal., May 4 (AP).—Douglas Aircraft corporation officials today said they are paying a premium of $82,000 to insure the giant 82 ton B-19 bomber for a million dollars during the first 60 seconds of its test flight.

Thereafter the premium will be $3,000 an hour during test flights, which are scheduled to begin May 17. The syndicate of insurance firms stipulates that the first takeoff must be made into a head wind of 25 or more miles an hour.

Douglas officials described the policy as the largest ever written on an airplane.

BRITISH SAY 300 AXIS PLANES DESTROYED IN GREEK WARFARE

LONDON, May 4 (AP).—About 300 axis warplanes were destroyed and "a huge total" damaged by the royal air force from the time it was rushed to Greece's aid until it left in the British withdrawal, the air ministry news service declared today.

The ministry called the RAF successes "perhaps the greatest triumph" of the six month military campaign and said that "tho the RAF suffered heavy losses, the enemy suffered far greater."

"At the finish of six months," it said, "RAF bombers in Greece had carried out more than 300 raids and nearly 300 aircraft had been confirmed as destroyed in the air as well as a huge total of aircraft on the ground."

The statement singled out the first British fighter squadron—a Gladiator unit—which began its patrols in Greece on the day of its arrival early last November and "accounted for more than 100 Italian and German aircraft before leaving Greece."

Foreign Minister Says He Knows America Now.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 5, Monday.—Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese foreign minister, declared yesterday that he already knows conditions in America so well there is no necessity going there to ascertain the United States' attitude toward the far east.

"I would rather like to have President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull come here so that they can fully understand actual conditions and the true intentions of Japan," Matsuoka declared.

"I have studied America and I know the conditions there. I doubt however, whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Hull are able to grasp the true situation in the far east.

At Ancient Capital.

"I believe Japanese-American problems could easily be solved if Roosevelt or Hull visited Japan rather than my going to the United States."

The foreign minister made these assertions at Kyoto, the ancient capital which he is visiting to report on his return from Europe to the spirits of the Sun Goddess Amaterasu, and Jimmu, the first Japanese emperor. Most important accomplishment of his stay in Europe was the Japanese-Russian neutrality agreement.

Speaking of Japan's policy in the South seas, Matsuoka said "much is to be carried out in an orderly manner." He omitted any reference to use of force.

Cautious on China.

He approached the Chinese situation more cautiously, declaring "nothing can be said since it belongs to delicate diplomatic tactics, but I will strive for a settlement."

Matsuoka once again reaffirmed Japan's allegiance to the axis, and closed by saying that trade negotiations were progressing with Thailand [Siam], Indo-China, the Dutch East Indies, and Russia.

EX-KING CAROL SHOWS SPEED IN LIFEBOAT DRILL

ABOARD S. S. EXCAMBION, At Sea, May 4 (AP). — This ship's royal exile, Carol of Rumania, answered the first life boat drill with dispatch today, but he might have been a casualty if it had been a genuine emergency instead of just practice.

The ex-monarch, en route with his woman companion, Mme. Magda Lupescu, to asylum in Cuba, either neglected or forgot to fasten his life belt as he stood in line with his fellow passengers. It was standing open when Ernest Udareanu, the former court chamberlain who is accompanying Carol into exile, discovered the fact and quickly adjusted the royal life preserver. All was correct by the time the ship's officer reached Carol on his tour of inspection.

GERMANS POUND LIVERPOOL THRU 4TH NIGHT IN ROW

Pour New Destruction on Battered Port.

LONDON, May 5, Monday (AP).—German planes attacking in force for the fourth straight night blasted at Liverpool and the surrounding Merseyside area last night and early today in a heavy raid. Nazi raiders also dropped bombs on an East Anglian town [eastern England].

High flying raiders—presumably flying to the attack on Liverpool—caused an alarm in London at midnight, but the alert was on for some time before antiaircraft fire was heard in two districts. It was London's second night alarm since April 26.

German bombers had raided Liverpool Saturday night and Sunday morning, showering the battered west coast port with fire and high explosive bombs which inflicted many casualties and much destruction.

Employing the same tactics used in repeated and unremitting assaults upon Coventry and Plymouth, the Germans attacked in big waves from dusk to dawn. They were met, however, by the heaviest antiaircraft barrage yet thrown up in the region.

Fight Fires Thru Sunday.

Many houses were demolished and damaged, and a number of residents trapped. Thruout Sunday firefighters and rescue squads toiled in the ruins, bringing out those trapped and trying to restore some semblance of order.

The toll of German raiders downed over England since early Saturday night reached 23 early today. Six were downed by fighters and one by antiaircraft fire during last night's raids. The toll Saturday night was 16.

The renewed raiding came after the air ministry reported Britain's far ranging bombers loosed the full fury of their newest and most powerful bombs on Germany's great industrial center of Cologne and other targets Saturday night.

Multimotored British craft circled over Cologne and dropped a great weight of high explosives and fire bombs on the industrial quarters which "must have done immense damage," it was said. "There were big fires in the areas between Hohenzollern bridge and the center of the city."

Attack Warships Again.

Not a British plane was lost in Saturday night's operations, which also included a strong attack on the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau at Brest and lighter stabs at objectives at Essen and Dusseldorf in Germany and oil storage tanks at Rotterdam in Holland. There were new attacks on Brest last night.

The British acknowledged the loss of two of their own planes in daylight operations Saturday, but balanced this with a claim that two German supply ships of about 2,000 and 500 tons were sunk in the Strait of Dover. Another ship of 5,000 tons was seriously damaged and probably sunk, it was reported.

Numerous sharp dogfights took place over the southeast coast Sunday and observers said they believed four planes were shot down.

From east coast towns it was reported that police stations, an air raid precautions center, and shops were damaged in raids Saturday night.

Belfast Bombed Severely.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 5, Monday (AP).—The Belfast area was bombed severely last night and it was feared casualties were heavy. Considerable damage was done to industrial and residential property. A number of fires were started.

Called "Mightiest Raid."

BERLIN, May 4 (AP).—Several hundred German air force bombers battered Liverpool for hours Saturday night, the Germans announced today, in what was called one of the mightiest aerial blows ever made upon a British city.

In addition to Liverpool German bombers hammered industrial areas of Middlesborough on the British east coast.

The high command said this assault left spreading fires in a wide area of East Merseyside docks, in grain and wool storehouses, drydocks and among other military targets.

Crossing paths with the Nazi raiders, British bombers flew into western Germany "in small strength," the high command asserted, and showered a number of fire and explosive bombs which caused "a few losses in dead and wounded." It added, however, that neither military nor economic damage was inflicted.

TRUCK TIRES STOLEN.

Burglars early yesterday broke into a garage at 320 West 29th street and took the tires from two new tractor trucks.

New York, May 4 [Special].—Betty Hecksher, heiress, and MacDonald Carey, actor now appearing in a Broadway play, were married this afternoon in the fashionable Church of the Redeemer in Bryn Mawr, Pa., before 400 guests, including Actress Gertrude Lawrence and Actor Victor Mature. The bride wore her mother's handsome lace wedding veil, the same used by her half-sister, Gwaldys Hopkins, when she was married to Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney a decade ago. An elaborate reception followed at the estate of the bride's mother, Mrs. Stevens Hecksher, in nearby Villanova.

PREDICT BRITISH SYSTEM OF RULE IN U. S. INDUSTRY

Restrictive Measures Are Forecast.

Stronger government control over the American economy if the preparedness program continues or is enlarged was forecast yesterday by economists at the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast. It would be patterned after the system now in operation in Great Britain, they added.

The experts who discussed the question were Herman Finer, visiting British professor of political science; William H. Spencer, dean of the university's business school, and Theodore O. Yntema, professor of statistics.

British Labor Registered.

"British labor," Prof. Finer said, "has been registered according to occupations and skills, and is allocated to the most essential industries, altho some freedom of choice of jobs is still possible.

"British labor, during a three month period last year, worked on an average of 76 hours a week. Because much work was spoiled and because there were many absences from work, hours have been reduced to 55 a week.

"The right to strike has been virtually abolished by the enactment of compulsory arbitration legislation, and the government can take over an industry under existing laws."

Discusses British Taxation.

Prof. Finer discussed taxation briefly, saying that "the [British] government now takes nearly one-half the income of a head of a family earning 500 pounds a year."

As to industry in general, Prof. Finer said there is a systematic government checkup on management efficiency. Prof. Yntema commented that the British system in that regard "conforms to practice in this country of studying the efficiency of management in an industry before awarding contracts for defense requirements."

Prof. Spencer said the "British control of industrial organization appears to be more efficient than the American, and that the British system "will have to come in the United States if the defense effort is expanded or if we actually enter the war."

MILWAUKEE FIRM FINISHES FIRST ARTILLERY GUN

Army to Receive 105 mm. Howitzer Wednesday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4 [Special].—The first 105 mm. howitzer for the United States army to be completed by a private plant will be delivered to United States army ordnance officers Wednesday morning by the Vilter Manufacturing company here.

Company officials said the contract was awarded in August, tooling process was completed in January and the company now is in production. Col. Donald Armstrong, executive ordnance officer of the Chicago district said the company has done an excellent job on rushing the howitzers.

He said the company has a sizable order. There will be more 105's in the army than any other kind of a gun, he said.

Fires 33 Pound Shell.

The effectiveness of the 105 is said to lie in the fact that it throws a 33 pound projectile more than 12,000 yards. The 75 mm. gun uses a lighter shell. The function of the 105 is to shell infantry columns and pound field fortifications.

The delivery of the first 105 mm. howitzer will be accompanied by ceremony. Gov. Julius P. Heil, Mayor Carl F. Zeidler, and many of Wisconsin's industrial leaders will attend.

The army will be represented by Brig. Gen. A. G. Gillespie, commanding general of the Watervliet arsenal, Troy, N. Y., where 105's heretofore have been made; Brig. Gen. O. B. Lewis, Washington, D. C., office of ordnance; Col. Armstrong and F. A. Preston, civilian chief of the Chicago ordnance district.

Another Plant Gets Orders.

The Chain Belt company here has a large order for 105's and will be in production soon, Col. Armstrong said. The government arsenal at Watervliet does not have the production capacity of the large private plants.

The Vilter company also has other rearmament contracts, both direct and indirect. It is making gray iron castings for the machine tool industry and also supplies refrigerating units for army camps and cantonments.

VETERANS' LEADER URGES OUSTER OF MADAME PERKINS

Monroe, Wis., May 4 [Special].—Removal of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was urged here today by Col. William Armstrong, Racine, former national and state commander of Spanish-American war veterans.

Col. Armstrong, in an address before 150 Spanish-American war veterans, declared that Mme. Perkins "has been coddling subversive elements and as such has no place in our government." Armstrong, former mayor of Racine, was principal speaker at the annual reunion of the first Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry association, whose members were in the first regiment to leave Wisconsin for the Spanish-American war.

TELLS HEROISM OF SAILORS WHO RESCUED BRITISH

Crippled Vessel Wins Over Bombs and Sea.

BY ROBERT ST. JOHN.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 4 (AP).—If you would know what made it possible for the British navy to evacuate tens of thousands of imperial troops from Greece in face of almost incredible odds, listen to the story of the Ulysses.

Members of the Ulysses crew told me the story themselves as we lay side by side on the deck of another ship steaming to safety.

The Ulysses [that wasn't her name, but it makes no difference] was a British merchant liner assigned to evacuate men from the Greek mainland. She was just pulling into an embarkation port when Stukas dive bombed her and blew away both her anchors. Further operation was thus made hazardous, but thousands of weary soldiers were waiting ashore to be taken off, and so the Ulysses went on.

Back to Face New Perils.

She loaded her quota of troops, steamed two days to a disembarkation port, and floated helplessly without anchors while her human cargo was discharged. Then she turned back for another load.

At the spot where she was attacked before, more German planes swooped down, skimming her decks and machine gunning and bombing her. One bomb hit its mark. The engine room was flooded. There was no longer any question of taking on troops. Now the problem was whether the Ulysses could be saved.

Race to Save a Ship.

Now began a race to save 9,000 tons of British shipping. The warship clipped along at nine knots, amazing speed for a towing job. During the foggy night the tow line parted and the Ulysses skeleton crew saw death looming up for them as the warship sped away. But she came back and by dawn they were approaching a friendly shore. Then came another SOS from near the Greek mainland.

The warship located a little Greek schooner which agreed to take the Ulysses in tow and the man o' war raced away on a second errand of mercy.

Sails For Days Without Convoy.

For days the Ulysses was pulled slowly thru Mediterranean waters without convoy, a perfect target for attacking planes, but I saw her arrive at her destination. I heard a cheer suddenly go up from the little group of men in the bow of my own evacuation ship. It came from men who had left the Ulysses.

It was their tribute to their shipmates who had stayed behind to help guide the crippled merchantman into port. It was a tribute to the bravery of the British at sea. It was a tribute to the British navy, which had saved 9,000 tons and several hundred men.

There was the story of another British merchantman which was struck on the bow by a German bomb. Damage was slight, but a serious fire broke out. Then another German plane dropped four more bombs. They landed all around the bow and sent up mountains of water, which swept over the ship and extinguished the flames.

Nazis Finish a British Job.

The story of an unimportant small British merchant craft which ran aground during the evacuation is ironical. The salvaging operation was considered too risky. The value of the ship too slight to make it worth while.

During the night the entire crew was taken off with every piece of equipment of the slightest value. Then depth bombs were placed in the hull set to go off in four days after the evacuation operation was completed.

At dawn the next morning Nazi planes spotted the derelict and dive bombed her for an hour, finally sinking her. Had they left her alone, she would have blown to bits anyway in 82 hours.

Headquarters in Graveyard.

I was brought to safe shores on a ship with a group of navy officers who conceived and supervised the Greek evacuation. They told how they hid during daylight hours for more than a week in a Greek graveyard. They dressed in khaki army desert uniforms and draped themselves with olive leaves while low flying Nazi planes tried in vain to hunt out the "brain center" of the evacuation operations.

They got little rest, for German planes roared up and down machine gunning roads and bombing any town or port that they thought might be on the evacuation route.

When dusk descended these naval experts shed their khaki and put on blue to go into action. By radio, by flashlight signals, and by barked orders they guided British and allied craft of every conceivable description into hidden coves, into tiny harbors, and into obscure fishing ports where, between dusk and dawn, tens of thousands of soldiers were being saved for Britain.

Last Task: Saving Selves.

I stood on the dock one night as the evacuation was nearing its end. Now it was time for these weary men to be evacuated themselves. They had another job to do somewhere else. A small warship was supposed to be on the way to rescue them.

German forces were close by. With daylight they might be where we stood. The warship was due on the stroke of midnight.

"And if it doesn't come?" I asked.

"Then it's up to our ingenuity to try to circumvent enemy troops and beat our way to some other port still open," they said.

I paced the jetty nervously. If it didn't come I, too, had to use some ingenuity. But these men, who would be in much worse danger than I would be, smoked calmly and talked of distant things.

Rescuers Right on Time.

"We will wait until half an hour after midnight," they said finally. "If it doesn't come then, it will mean our message wasn't received or the ship has more important business."

Five minutes before midnight, a large gray shape loomed thru the mist. On the stroke of midnight tiny lights began to blink across the water.

"PSB" [please send boat] flashed back one of the officers with his pocket flashlight. In a few minutes we were aboard the warship.

ATHENS CROWDS SEE NAZI PARADE OF BLITZ MIGHT

Flock to Streets as Panzer Units Rumble Past.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

ATHENS, May 4 [Via Special Plane to Berlin]. (AP)—Adolf Hitler's Balkan army, marching in a two hour parade thru this Greek capital, today gave a convincing demonstration to the Hellenes why their country was vanquished with blitzkrieg rapidity.

The troops filed past Marshal Siegmund List, Hitler's Balkan commander. He stood before the royal palace in the heart of the city surrounded by generals and other high officers of the German and Italian armies as formation after formation marched or motored by.

Some distance away on the classic Acropolis, rocky fortress ruins of ancient Athens, the swastika fluttered in the spring breeze.

As a matter of prestige, several Italian regiments also participated.

Buildings' Foundations Shake.

Heavy panzer [armored] units raised a din along the streets while bombers roared above. The very foundations of structures along the line shook from the weight of the tanks and heavy artillery.

Greeks watched silently as the Teutonic forces passed. They seemed to accept the fact of their defeat philosophically and turned out in unexpectedly large numbers.

We who saw the German army parade in Paris noted a difference: In Paris the parade avenues looked deserted compared to Athens' main square and streets.

Capital Is "Roped Off."

Getting into Athens was no easy matter. Because of a shortage of supplies, Marshal List decided to rope off the capital, as it were, to prevent an influx of Greek soldiers and others who might quickly eat up what is left of provisions.

These provisions are regarded by the Germans as sufficient to maintain Athens until the country can recover from the shock of war and defeat provided the city is left to itself. Only released soldiers who are residents are permitted to enter.

We saw them by the thousands headed southward on foot from other sections of Greece. The German high command had given orders to release them as soon as they were disarmed. The soldiers were permitted to hitchhike on German army vehicles moving toward Athens. They often squatted atop tanks, supply cars, or munitions trailers, their faces grimy from dust and dirt.

Curbs Clamped on Nazis, Too.

Another order of List's was that no German officers or men can enter the capital without an order signed by a commanding general.

Moreover, any officer or soldier was forbidden to purchase goods in Athenian shops without a special certificate entitling him to make a specified purchase. This also was to prevent the city from becoming stripped of its supplies.

Apparently it is Hitler's desire to treat the Greeks as leniently as possible in the hope of winning them over to his policies for a new order in Europe.

Curfew is at 11 p. m.

While the Attic metropolis with its priceless art treasure, especially its temples of the Acropolis, have been untouched by firearms, its spacious harbor of Piraeus is another story.

Port Is Devastated.

There desolation and devastation characterize the once busy Mediterranean port. Seventeen British ships were sunk, docks blasted to bits, and supply storehouses in many cases burned to the ground. The harbor is clogged with vessels, sunk by dive bombers, their funnels protruding or their burned out hulls floating desolately.

From one 10,000 ton British transport a body rises occasionally to the surface. How many more are encased in the ship nobody knows.

One storehouse looks like a stalactite grotto. Its main supply was sugar which, when the flames caught on, melted. A lava-like stream oozed out from the upper stories, then congealed.

While much was destroyed by the dive bombers, the German army claims to have recovered remarkable stores of clothing, food, munitions, tobacco, and mechanical equipment. American canned pineapple and baked beans were among the goods.

To take stock of the stores left by the British in Piraeus a special department was set up by the quartermaster's office.

CANADIAN WAR WRITER IS LOST ON SEA VOYAGE

OTTAWA, Ont., May 4 (AP).—Sam Robertson, 35 years old, superintendent of the London bureau of the Canadian Press, was officially listed as missing tonight as the result of enemy action while on a sea voyage. He was returning to his post in London after a vacation in Canada.

Leaving his former post as superintendent of the New York bureau of the Canadian News coöperative, he went to Britain in December, 1939, with the second contingent of Canadian troops.

His self-assigned duties included personal coverage of the battle of Britain and a visit to the front lines in France last spring with the late Norman Rogers, then Canadian defense minister. On his arrival in Canada in March, Robertson reported a submarine attack on the convoy in which he traveled sank at least four and perhaps six ships, one a few hundred yards from his ship.

CLEANING TRADE FINANCE STUDIED IN SLAYING PROBE

William Crawford, assistant state's attorney, was studying financial phases of the cleaning and dyeing industry yesterday as part of the investigation of the bat murder of Anton Gorczak, a cleaning truck driver. Prosecutor Courtney and Corporation Counsel Hodes were cooperating on other legal matters arising from this slaying, the third of its kind in the last two years.

It was because of the Gorczak murder that Mayor Kelly closed the Klever-Shampay cleaning plant, 4631-41 Cottage Grove avenue. He did so on Courtney's report the plant was owned in part by Murray Humphreys, brigadier general of the Nitti gang. Courtney said Humphreys was using the cleaning company as a means of racketeering the entire industry.

A hearing on the company's plea for a court order for its reopening is scheduled for today before Judge John C. Lewe of the Superior court.

45 Ships to Rush Supplies to Dutch East Indies Ports

Portland, Ore., May 4 (AP).—To speed supplies to the Dutch East Indies, 45 Dutch steamers soon will transfer operations to the Pacific ocean, Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands minister to the United States, said today. He told an interviewer that the ships, which now sail between United States east coast ports and the East Indies, would begin loading war supplies in west coast ports because the trip thru the Panama canal took too long.

TRACE CITIZENS OF 5,000 B. C. IN AN ARIZONA CAVE

Tucson, Ariz., May 4 (AP).—Evidence indicating the southwestern United States was inhabited by man 5,000 years before the birth of Christ has been discovered in a cave on the Papago Indian reservation, Dr. Emil Haury, University of Arizona anthropologist, reported today.

Dr. Haury said nearly 7,000 years of human history in the southwest was disclosed in chronological strata in 12 feet of débris on the floor of the cave.

Stone age implements found in the bottom layer of rubble, indicated the cave was occupied continuously from 5,000 B. C. to 400 A. D., and since then only occasionally.

The cave is 200 feet up the slope of Castle mountain, 110 miles west of Tucson. It is 150 feet long, with a habitable shelf 25 feet wide, and has a small spring in one corner. The walls bear paintings in red, black and white.

The scientists found the first evidence of the physical appearance of the Hohokam peoples who lived in the middle centuries. Nine "reasonably good mummies" were found. They were medium to small in stature, of slight build, small bones, Mongoloid appearance, round heads and low, sloping foreheads.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH

Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others may! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing often can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities, Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store.

POLIDENT

CLEANS, PURIFIES LIKE MAGIC

Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes — Rinse —and it's ready to use!

ANTIWAR SPIRIT GROWS IN U. S. AS BRITISH FALTER

Roosevelt Hesitates On Question of Convoys.

total force of 700,000 men to close the pincers on the Suez canal, defended by 300,000 British. At the same time the Germans menace British control of Iraq and its vital oil pipe lines supplying fuel to the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

For a week or more London has been preparing Washington for the worst. According to the British, they can lose Gibraltar and Suez and still remain in the fight. They profess confidence that the Germans will be unable to invade the British Isles.

Expect Defeat in Weeks.

American government officials, however, are far less sanguine. The judgment of our highest military authorities is that Britain's situation is extremely critical. One estimate is that the British will be unable to hold out six weeks longer.

The sinking by German submarines and bombing planes of ships transporting arms from the United States to England has reached staggering proportions. Figures on merchant tonnage destroyed, as given out by the British, indicate that close to 40 per cent of the military equipment we are producing for Britain is going to the bottom of the Atlantic. President Roosevelt, however, declared this figure a gross exaggeration.

It is known, however, that the possibility of removing the seat of the British government from London to Canada has been considered in administration councils. Such a move is regarded as altogether likely if the Germans succeed in driving the British from Africa and the near east and proceed to concentrate on their attempt to invade England.

Fleet of Grave Concern.

The primary concern here is the disposition of the British fleet in the event of evacuation of the British Isles. Prime Minister Churchill has given his pledge to the United States that the British fleet will not be allowed to fall into the hands of the Germans under any conditions. He indicated that if Britain should be invaded, the British fleet would be sent, ere too late, to Canada to continue the war. It now appears, however, that continuation of the war by the British under such circumstances would be contingent upon the United States coming in with its navy as a belligerent.

According to reports received from the government's observers abroad, the losses suffered by the British navy have been far greater than the Churchill ministry has admitted. One observer described five British warships entering port in a "badly smashed up" condition. The crews were in battle tattered uniforms, with morale none too good, according to this report.

Ship Facilities Ruined.

German bombings, according to the reports of all observers, have pretty thoroly ruined British dock facilities and ship building plants. The result has been endless delays in unloading such cargoes of arms and food and other supplies as escape the German submarines and bombers.

With the crippling of harbor and drydock facilities and the suspension of night work by the blackout, there is not a British port remaining in which a damaged warship can be repaired within a reasonable time. That is the reason damaged British warships are being sent to the United States for repair under the terms of the aid Britain act.

In some quarters it is believed that the President is delaying a decision on his course till after consideration of the bill providing for requisition of foreign ships in American ports, which will begin in the house tomorrow.

More than 3,500 safety experts will attend the conference, which is sponsored by the Greater Chicago Safety council.

Road Builders to Discuss Superhighway Prospects

Prospects for construction of superhighways in the Chicago area and for general highway construction thruout the state will be discussed at the spring meeting of the Illinois Road Builders' association in the Drake hotel tomorrow. Taylor G. Soper, executive secretary, said yesterday the meeting will be especially important because of the relation of adequate highways to the national preparedness program.

INVASION TERROR TOLD BY EXILED LITH PRESIDENT

Slavery, Starvation Are Described by Smetona.

Terrors of the Russian invasion of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia were told to Chicago Lithuanians and distinguished guests last night by Antanas Smetona, president of Lithuania, at a dinner in the Palmer House. President Smetona fled his country at the time of the invasion.

"How terrifying," he said, "is the spectacle of present day Europe! People are being enslaved, deported from their homes, starved to death, and murdered. The greatest misery is the fate of the smaller nations, those nations that are not in a position to resist brutal force. Aggressors do not allow them any rights whatsoever. They are threatened with extermination, altho the population of the small nations is over 150 million, and their contribution to mankind and culture is great.

Mode of Living Disrupted.

"A year has not passed since the soviets invaded the Baltic states, and already the soviets have managed to disrupt the mode of living of those nations and to rob them of all their possessions. Religion, local customs, and everything of a national or cultural character are being destroyed.

"Because of all this the people do all in their power to escape the so-called soviet paradise, tho the frontier is guarded by bolshevik soldiers and vicious dogs and fenced with barbed wire. People prefer to risk their lives to escape, rather than suffer in the paradise that was promised by the bolsheviks, but which turned out to be hell on earth."

Look on U. S. As Guardian.

President Smetona said that the eyes of all peoples are on the United States as the guardian of peace and the protector of small nations.

"It seems to me," he went on, "that all Americans, especially those whose parents and ancestors came from Europe, should think of their beloved country, its security, and the need to strengthen it.

"Is it not the duty of every Lithuanian devotedly serving his present fatherland, the United States, to rise to the needs of the country of his ancestors, and help Lithuania in every possible way? The Lithuanian nation is still alive. She will not surrender to brutal bolshevism. She will remain alive and free."

The Railroads, Too, Have Voices

As if to discourage any undue optimism, there are voices that are being raised these days in earnest if indirect prophecy of ultimate disaster for the railroads. These are the voices promoting unplanned, uncoordinated and costly transportation. They forecast inland waterways thickly sprinkled with carriers from barges to ocean-going liners, highways packed with motor trucks, sky black with airplanes, pipelines tunneling under roads and rails.

Railroads have a story, too, and they have voices to tell it. MILLIONS OF VOICES. Voices that call for planning in transportation. Voices that recognize the supremacy of railroads as the nation's chief reliance for transportation. Voices that declare railway service is essential and, with half a chance, cannot be beaten in doing its job.

These are the voices, first of all, of railway managements, the official spokesmen of the industry. Then the owners, too, a million or more. Then the direct creditors, another million. Then the indirect creditors, many additional millions—savings bank depositors, insurance policy holders, teachers and students in endowed institutions of learning.

Added to these for anything that clearly benefits the industry as a whole are the voices of railway labor. They speak for more than a million workers devoting lives to this form of public service. And last, but not least, are the voices of those among the public who believe in the ORDERLY development of the nation's transportation.

These are persuasive voices. They are voices strong in the justice of their cause. They are voices that must be heard and will not be denied.

IS AMERICA TO GO TO WAR?

Claude Pepper's Florida seems to have beat the gun and gone to war on its own account. The city manager of Miami, L. L. Lee, refused to allow the America First committee to hold a meeting in Bayfront park, where recently the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies was given a permit and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. spoke.

The members of the America First committee then sought the use of the Dade county courthouse, where public meetings have been held. The county commissioners refused the request and one of the commissioners, with the approval of the others, said that the America First committee was a subversive organization. Another commissioner added that organizations fighting national policy should not be encouraged.

The Florida officials can say that they are only following the example of the White House in describing the opponents of American entry into the war as treasonable. The distinguished Americans who head the America First committee, men of long patriotic service, have been referred to in official Washington circles in terms which would imply that they were seditiously interfering with their country's cause in time of war.

The advocates of immediate war have jumped to the assumption that the nation is now in it and that consequently any disagreement with governmental policies is in effect traitorous. If the people generally could be brought to accept such a theory, the opprobrium attached to the opposition might act as a suppression of free speech in a time when freedom of opinion and expression is most needed.

There is an issue before the American people, and most of them recognize it as one of the most serious in their recent history. Mr. Roosevelt has some fixed policies the objectives of which become clearer every day. For some of them he has the consent of congress, for others he still lacks that. The questions are in debate in congress and they are being discussed all over the country.

The opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's program of direct armed intervention in the war consists of many men and women distinguished in public and private life. Many of them have service records which cannot be equaled by the party supporting war. The division is not upon party lines, altho a majority of the Republicans in congress are opposed to the Roosevelt policy when it goes beyond the western hemisphere.

No one is opposed to the protective measures being taken for the defense of the United States. The only criticism is of the delays and the mistakes which have slowed down the preparations described as of such imperative emergency.

The question about which honest men can differ involves the use to be made of the national resources as they are assembled in the armed forces. Patriotic men and women believe that the future of the country is best protected by building up defense and staying out of the war for which the country is not prepared. There are other people who no doubt sincerely believe that this involves dangers which would be minimized by helping the British now to defeat Hitler's Nazi forces. If such people are sincere and thoughtful, they do not regard the man who sees the other side as a traitor. They must themselves at times have their doubts. We all lack an exact and error-proof vision of the future.

The primary requirement in the forming of opinion and the making of decisions is that the motive be wholly one devoted to the security and well-being of the American people, now and in the future. That is an obligation particularly imposed upon persons in authority. The right to debate this momentous question is one of the guaranteed rights of American citizenship and the attempt to deny it by intimidation and vilification is one highly charged with the sort of rule which has blighted so large a part of the world.

This country is not supporting the rights of free men by trying to suppress them.

EXPERTS IN SAFETY.

The chief of staff of the 2d corps area, a Col. Joseph A. Baer, made a speech in New York the other day in which he seems to have said without noticeable regret that the American army is going to get into the war. Fittingly enough, he addressed his remarks to the convention of the Greater New York Safety council.

So far as we can recall, no American general was killed in battle in the last war and the fatalities among general staff officers were certainly few. If any chief of staff died for his country the fact escaped attention. Many men who occupied less exalted stations in the service would have heard the news with interest and even treasured it in memory had they survived to do so.

There is a certain propriety, then, in the appearance of a fire-breathing chief of staff before a safety council. A more congenial atmosphere could hardly have been found. Staff officers are qualified experts in the field of safety, not to mention comfort. Few men in uniform can be said to have learned more about hazards and privations at second hand.

Sometimes chiefs of staff are driven to a point at which the roll of the guns is plainly audible, but as a rule the chauffeurs manage to get their warriors back in time for a well cooked dinner and the ameliorations of a soldier's life which follow. In good conscience, who could deny a staff officer the little comfort to be derived from a blazing log, a pair of slippers, a companionable bottle, and such other companionship as may come to hand?

If there is anything more inspiring than a fire-breathing chief of staff, it must be a fire-breathing member of the cabinet at or about the age of 70. This country today is surely not lacking in inspirations for the men who are to be drowned and disemboweled.

ASCAP MUSIC.

On May 1 the Mutual Broadcasting System announced it had concluded several weeks of negotiations with the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers.

Simultaneously with the announcement that a contract proposal satisfactory both to ASCAP and a majority of the stockholders of Mutual, recommendation was made to the more than 170 affiliates of Mutual that they accept the proposal, which would license the broadcasting of ASCAP music for a long term ending Jan. 1, 1950, and restore to the air the large catalog of music which radio listeners have not been able to hear since Jan. 1.

The deadlock between broadcasters and ASCAP, which resulted in a failure to renew the music license contracts expiring with Dec. 31, 1940, was occasioned by a feeling on the part of the broadcasters that too much money was being demanded by the American Society for the use of its music. The elimination of "God Bless America," the formation of a competitive source of music known as Broadcast Music, Inc., and the flooding of the air with "There I Go," "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair," etc., followed. Threatened suits by the department of justice against both music sources brought about the signing of consent decrees, which fixed certain basic principles to be followed in future license arrangements.

Two forms of contract are embraced in the proposal. One is a blanket license arrangement, and the other is a license fee based on a per-program formula. Both propositions contain a favored-nation clause, which guarantees to the licensee that he will receive any better terms which may later be agreed upon with other broadcasting stations or networks. The stockholders of Mutual Broadcasting System strongly recommend the acceptance of the blanket arrangement.

The Mutual organization and ASCAP are to be congratulated upon their solution of the economics of the music problem as they see it. Their obligation to the public, the government and the advertisers has been fully met. It is to be hoped that the affiliated stations of that network will speedily indorse the proposal and that the major networks will lose no time in following suit in order that the largest repertoire of American music produced by the outstanding composers of the country may once again entertain and inspire radio listeners.

BRITISH CABINET CHANGES.

Some London commentators say they don't understand just what the new British cabinet changes mean. Lord Beaverbrook has been put in a new post with the title of minister of state, an office which is said to carry with it a virtual economic dictatorship. He is also referred to as a deputy prime minister.

One view of the shakeup is that it is intended to relieve Mr. Churchill of all duties except those relating to military operations and diplomatic affairs. Beaverbrook is to apply the energy he was devoting to aircraft production to the production of all manner of war material. A business man, Frederick J. Leathers, has been put in charge of the combined offices of shipping and transport and his post will be known as the ministry of wartime communications.

Mr. Churchill succeeded Mr. Chamberlain as prime minister immediately after the first military reverses which began in April and May of last year in Norway and the Low Countries. The change now taking effect follows the military reverses in Greece and North Africa. Mr. Churchill's position was not affected by the Dunkirk affair. He retained the confidence of the country and one reason was good enough to explain that. The causes of what happened in Norway, the Low Countries, and France in the spring of 1940 were of long standing and came out of long time governmental procedure.

Some people think Beaverbrook is next in line if Mr. Churchill should lose the support of parliament, which does not now seem probable. Beaverbrook, the son of the Rev. William Aitken, was born in New Brunswick, Canada. New Brunswick was also the birthplace of Andrew Bonar Law, who became one of Britain's prime ministers. Beaverbrook with Bonar Law had a great deal to do in the overthrow of the Asquith government in 1916, when Lloyd George became prime minister after the battle of the Somme. Churchill himself had gone out of the cabinet after the Gallipoli undertaking.

British military setbacks usually have their reverberations in parliament and in cabinet shakedowns. Beaverbrook has been even more downright than Mr. Churchill in trying to dissipate any illusions which might be entertained regarding the trials ahead. His Daily Express, the day after his appointment as minister of state, recounted the succession of reverses in the last 12 months and exhorted the people to "believe nothing good in this war until you see it and you earn it."

GOOD WORK—BUT KEEP IT UP.

Mayor Kelly is on the right track in his efforts to smash the Nitti gang when he tells the police that the syndicate must not be allowed to make another nickel in Chicago. If its war chest is emptied the gang's real power for evil will be destroyed and its control thereafter will be a mere matter of an occasional polishing with a nightstick.

The Nitti gang has had ten years or more to dig in in Chicago, with only sporadic and largely ineffectual opposition from the authorities. Such a malignant growth can't be rooted out in ten days, or ten weeks. The pressure must be kept on. Unless it is kept on until the last racketeer, the last gambling house and brothel keeper, the last crooked labor leader, the last broker of political favors, and the last briber of police and public officials has the seat out of his pants and looks for greener pastures elsewhere, the present effort will not effect a real cure.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

LONDON PREMIERE, 1617.

There are many misconceptions afloat about the characteristics of London theaters in Shakespeare's time. The average person, having read much romantic nonsense about the rip-roaring, devil-may-care, bawdy and turbulent times of Queen Elizabeth, is apt to imagine that play-going then was like attending a red-light district ball in a tumble-down barn. Practically nothing can be found in the fragmentary English documents of the period to dispel this illusion.

But it happens that a certain gentleman from Venice named Orazio Busino was in London in the Shakespearean period, and his letters were fortunately preserved. In 1850 one of his descendants bequeathed the family archives to the library of St. Mark, and thus there came to the attention of scholars the following observations, written in 1617:

"The other day they resolved to take me to one of the many theaters here in London, where comedies are recited, and there we saw the performance of a tragedy which affected me very little, chiefly because I cannot understand a single word of English. One could get some pleasure only by gazing at the magnificent dresses of the reciters and observing their gestures and the various interludes of music, dancing, singing, and such-like things. The best entertainment was to see and contemplate so many noblemen, so finely arrayed that they looked like so many princes, and listening with such silence and respect. And many honorable and fair ladies come there with perfect freedom and take their seats amongst the men without hesitation."

RED-WINGED BLACKBIRD.

Sweet flute of silver
Over the marshlands,
Mantled musician
With red epaulettes,
The eye is a captive
To brightness and beauty
Like one who beholdeth
The sun when it sets!

The ear is in thralldom,
The soul is in rapture,
As on the reeds bending
And swaying he rests,
In glory outpouring
The sweet songs of springtime
Above the still places
That hold hidden nests!

Anthems of April,
Hymnals of Easter,
Ballads of blossoms
Pour from his throat;
Rich vestured singer
In Nature's cathedrals,
Holding us spellbound
By his clear note!

WOMAN'S LAST WORDS.

With "Honestly!" or "After all!"
A woman makes a man feel small;
They're better than a loaded bludgeon
For telling you she's in a dudgeon;
With either she can voice contempt
And let you know that you're exempt
From treatment as a human being—
Or why you aren't is past all seeing!
It often means that she's bereft
Of reasons why. She has none left,
But that is not to signify
That she's content to let it lie—
With those words you're to know, you heel,
They're always signals for a squall,
Are "Honestly!" and "After all!"

Casual.

Why is the truth naked but the lie only barefaced?

Since they've put their bloomers on.

SHOCK FOLLOWING INJURY. WHAT IS IT?

THE other day, a newspaper account of a traffic accident stated that the victims were suffering from "shock." Did it mean that the participants had been jarred or bumped unmercifully? Not at all! In this connection the word typifies a type of collapse of vital forces, including the nervous system, which may be powerful enough to prove fatal.

It is far more than loss of blood. There is an intimate relation between the crushing of tissues and the behavior of nerves. A case in point is that of a man of 32 who experienced an abrupt and severe injury to both legs. There was very little hemorrhage, but the skin was cold and clammy, and the pulse extremely weak. Heroic efforts were required—including the application of heat, the administration of fluids, and other means of stimulation—to tide him over the ensuing few hours. If nothing had been done the flickering spark of life probably would have gone out.

As we would expect, in this condition, the pressure within the arteries is low. It would appear almost as tho the heart had encountered a complete setback. It acts stunned. Altho it is beating with fair regularity, it pulsates with indifference, as if it didn't care whether it kept on or not.

One of the first remedies is to furnish liquids—fill the tissues to overflowing if need be—in an effort to restore "balance" even tho bleeding has not been great. If hemorrhage has been severe we can understand why this is essential. In addition, a generous dose of glucose solution is usually injected in the hope that enough fluid will be supplied to the pumping structure and thus maintain nutrition to the muscles.

Careful studies show that from two to three quarts may be given slowly, with a corresponding rise in blood pressure—from perhaps 60 to 70 systolic to well above 100. We may assume that a reading below 100 will be followed by a lack of oxygen because the cardiac organ is not able to push an adequate quantity of circulation thru the lungs. Again, if the supply pumped per minute is small, the rate of the pulse rises. With a 50 per cent drop in the output of the heart, the beat may be 120 times per minute.

Perhaps the most potent emotional factor is fear. Apprehension may so disturb the nerve depots that govern the caliber of the smaller arteries, that control will be lost. Sometimes it is difficult to rouse the patient to a sufficient effort to make recovery possible. If he can be made comfortable in a warm bed; if the attendants will wear smiles instead of donning graveyard countenances, a fatalistic outlook may disappear.

Of course, the best medicine for these victims is blood itself. Enough should be given so that normal pressure will be maintained. Sometimes breathing oxygen will add to the nutrition of the tissues and this gas may be administered by nasal catheter if an oxygen room it not available.

A rather curious device has been reported upon favorably in a few instances. This consists of bandaging the legs tightly to squeeze blood out of the finer vessels into the larger conduits, thus increasing the volume dispatched to the pumping organ.

The importance of obtaining early and proper treatment cannot be overemphasized. None of these shock patients should be shipped appreciable distances. The nearest hospital where facilities can be secured should be utilized.

MASKS ADVISED.

PAINTER writes: Is it harmful to inhale rust? We are working on a job that requires us to scrape rust off a ship. We have dust masks but don't always use them.

REPLY.

No one should inhale foreign particles likely to lodge in the bronchi or the lungs. Rust is iron oxide and most of it would be absorbed. Temporary local irritation, however, may ensue. Why not use your masks?

HAVING ITS FLING.

M. O. writes: For the last 10 years I have had trouble with my shoulder. It jumps out of place every now and then. Can this be cured?

REPLY.

An expert can fasten the ligaments in such a fashion that the arm can be moved but the head of the bone will remain in the socket. You can learn to guard against movements which are likely to cause dislocation.

FIRES BURNING HERE AT HOME.

West Chicago, Ill., April 30.—Can't we Americans ever learn? How can we risk involvement in any war at this time? We have too many fires smoldering here in our own land—fires that must be quenched before they burst into flames that would consume our democratic institutions:

1. There are millions of American men who are dissatisfied because they can't find employment.

2. There are millions of our working men who are discouraged with the slowness of the Democratic machinery for adjusting their problems, thereby furnishing fertile ground for communist labor leaders who persuade these men that violence and revolution are the only means of settlement.

3. There are hordes of Nazi agents and sympathizers here in our midst, waiting like vultures until the right moment to swoop.

4. All of us have been waiting for years to see the national budget balanced, and are apprehensive that our alarming public debt will eventually be wiped out by inflation, thereby robbing every man and woman who has a dollar saved, whether in banks, insurance or government bonds.

5. Millions of us, already burdened with taxation, are bravely, even willingly, accepting the new load laid upon us to aid Britain and to build our own defense. How many will quietly endure the added ghastly cost of an overseas war that isn't our business?

So come on, Americans! Put your shoulder to the wheel! Throw your weight against participation in this war before it is too late! Don't let smoke get in your eyes!

EDITH WINDLOW MASTRUD.

NOT A CAPTAIN AMONG 'EM.

Tampico, Ill., April 28.—We, the Americans of Illinois, Whiteside county, and the city of Tampico where I reside, strongly resent the name calling on the part of Franklin D. Roosevelt when he terms Col. Charles Lindbergh a "copperhead." I believe that Lindbergh is as true an American as we have.

Many of the young men of our city have been inducted into the army in the last 60 days, but not one has been made a captain or a colonel, nor has any one of them been sent as an observer anywhere by Clipper plane.

A. E. BENNETT.

HIGH MORALE THE WEAPON.

Park Ridge, Ill., May 1.—I suggest that special divisions be formed in the army of those who believe that our war is being fought in Europe and that it is better to fight our war on foreign soil.

They could then have the honor of being the first to go, and the high morale alone, without sufficient armament, should make the enemy surrender. And for commanders they could have those fine old men from 50 to 90 who keep telling us we should fight our war anywhere except in the United States.

TED DAY.

THRILLED BY A CARTOON.

Bloomington, Ill., April 29.—The front page Tribune cartoon by McCutcheon, illustrating the 100 million people who do not want the good old U. S. A. "pulled into war," carried a patriotic thrill to the heart of those who consider the Declaration of Independence an America First document.

ELMON ARMSTRONG.

IS THE LEGION FOR WAR?

Chicago, May 1.—Please note the much-publicized patriotism of the American Legion and other veterans' groups in a critical national period such as this. Since the formation of the Legion, its platform has been one of national defense and peace. Yet with our country being led down that awful road to foreign war . . . bamboozled in the same disgusting way as in 1917 . . . we hear no outcry from the Legion to halt this national suicide by again going into Europe's eternal quarrels.

We hear of the present department commander of the Legion doing everything to indorse the White House stand. How can any man who has gone thru the last war and seen the same old war hysteria do anything but condemn this artificially created war fever with all the strength he can muster?

Deep down the American people are so overwhelmingly opposed to war acts that our Washington boys are going to have a very unpleasant situation on their hands in finding the country is anything but behind them in their sinister acts of war baiting. And that probably goes for the Legion, too.

A VETERAN.

WAGES IN CIVIL SERVICE.

Chicago, April 30.—Just finished listening to the President's speech on defense savings bonds and stamps, and one thing which stood out like a lighthouse were the words, "with jobs more plentiful and wages higher, a slight sacrifice here and there. . . ."

I wonder whether the President knows that due to the defense program the cost of living has gone up considerably, and while most defense jobs have brought higher wages, the government itself has not raised the wages of its own civil service employés who are working for their country, regardless of the fact that some of them have been drawing the same pay for years and barely make ends meet. What are they expected to live on now, what with food, rent, clothing, taxes, etc., going up and their own salaries at a standstill?

A CIVIL SERVICE EMPLOYE'S WIFE.

FREEZING INCOMPETENCE.

Chicago, April 28.—While the governor and the legislature are concerned with the city civil service, they might do well to scan the civil service record of the Chicago park district. They will find there conditions that are freezing incompetence at large salaries and for many years, into positions responsible for the expenditure of millions of public money.

Were the examinations and the appointments to positions in the park service based upon ability and not political expedience, perhaps there would be no necessity to press the state assembly for a pegged levy, from time to time, and so save millions of dollars to the people.

R. H.

THINK AN APOLOGY DUE.

Chicago, April 30.—We believe every true American should protest the attack made by the President on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

As this is a country of free speech, we believe that the citizens should demand that the President apologize to Col. Lindbergh and that his resignation as colonel in the army air corps should not be accepted.

CASSIUS C. ROGERS.
JESSIE H. ROGERS.

HOW LONG IS AN EMERGENCY?

Chicago, April 26.—The President now says: "It may be necessary to retain all drafted men in the services for the duration of the emergency." Does this mean for the lifetime of the President or just for eight more years?

FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT.

Chicago, April 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have just learned of the advice your legal department gives and am writing you this letter to learn one simple fact.

For the past four months I have been working for a certain lithographing concern on the north side. They paid me a salary of $12.00 a week for a 40 hour week. Could you please give me some advice on this matter? I am 19 years old.

B. M.

Under the fair labor standards act, popularly called the wages and hours law, the minimum wages per hour and maximum hours per week are as follows:

	Minimum wage	Maximum hrs.
10/24/38 to 10/23/39	....25c	42
10/24/39 to 10/23/40	....30c	42
10/24/40 to 10/23/45	....40c	40
After 10/24/45	.....40c	40

The maximum hours can be exceeded by paying time and a half, or by collective bargaining agreements.

The act applies primarily to workers engaged in interstate commerce. The wage and hour provisions apply also to the production of goods for such commerce, but section 13 exempts [1] executives, [2] any employé engaged in any retail or servicing establishment the greater part of whose selling or servicing is in intrastate commerce, [3] seamen, [4] employments covered by the railway labor act, [5] fishing, broadly defined, [6] agriculture, [7] employés exempted by administrative order, [8] small weekly and semiweekly newspapers, [9] street railways, [10] first processing of agricultural products, such as ginning cotton, making butter, etc.

Employment of persons under the age of 16 is prohibited; employment of persons under the age of 18 in any occupation administratively determined to be hazardous or detrimental to the well-being of such children is also prohibited. Administrative exemption of learners, apprentices and handicapped workers is authorized. The administrative offices are at 222 North Bank drive, Chicago.

Constant Research Makes the Prevention of Baldness Possible

CHICAGO, May 5th (J.W.)—Science has never discovered a way to grow hair on a bald head — and baldness remains a permanent condition except in very rare cases to the unfortunates so afflicted, but rapid strides have been made by the John E. Warner Associates in the prevention of Baldness. Thousands of men have saved and improved their hair through the Warner method of treatment, but no case is ever accepted unless beneficial results are certain. Hundreds of men and women are treated each week in some of the largest and best equipped offices of this kind in the world, located in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, and Pittsburgh. This service is now available to the people of Chicago through the new office here. There is never any charge for a private examination or consultation at these offices—and in every case honest advice is given as to whether or not treatment can be helpful. Statistics show that 85% of all baldness is due to local scalp conditions which can be checked and corrected if caught in time. Many cases treated have resulted in a more luxuriant growth of the hair and a greatly improved appearance. Each case is studied individually and constantly and each person treated is given detailed instructions at the conclusion of the treatment so that a healthy head of hair is a permanent condition. The new Chicago offices of John E. Warner Associates are conveniently located at Suite 1320-24 North American Bldg., 36 S. State (northwest corner State and Monroe). Phone Central 1451. Hours 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily, Saturday to 6 p. m. Fees for treatment are moderate and are paid as the treatments are taken. There is a separate department for women.

AUSTRALIA'S WAR TAXES TO PINCH MASSES HARDER

All Getting $620 a Year Will Have to Pay.

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, [By Mail.]—Every Australian who earns more than $620 this year will have to help pay for the war under the commonwealth's revised direct taxation plan.

For the fiscal year ending June 31, the government will spend a total of $885,193,600, of which. $457,600,000 will cover war expenditures within the commonwealth and $137,600,000 its war costs overseas.

Under the new scale of taxation, persons in the upper brackets, those with incomes of more than $3,200 a year, will be hit the hardest. They earn an estimated $272,000,000 annually, or 11 per cent of the estimated national income of $2,384,000,000, but will pay 60 per cent of the taxes, or $64,000,000. Persons earning from $1,280 to $3,200 will pay the next highest amount, a total of $25,600,000 on estimated earnings of $457,600,000. This group earns 19 per cent of the national income but will pay 24 per cent of the total assessments.

Poorest Group to Pay 15 Pct.

The bottom bracket group, those earning less than $1,280, accounts for 70 per cent of the national income, or $1,654,400,000, but its tax assessment amounts to only $16,000,000, 15 per cent of the total.

From these three groups the government will raise approximately $105,600,000 of new taxes to help defray the costs of war at home. An additional $99,300,000 will be raised from existing levies, divided as follows:

Individual income tax, $56,600,000, corporation income tax, $18,500,000; sales tax, $10,800,000; customs and excise, $13,400,000.

Individual Exemptions Cut.

The commonwealth has reduced individual income tax exemptions from $800 annually to $620 but has left unchanged the deductions for married persons and dependents. Married men with two children will not have to pay a tax until their earnings exceed $930 a year, but from this point on the rate rises steeply to reach what the treasury regards as "a reasonable limit under existing conditions." This limit, for combined commonwealth and state taxes, the treasury has set at $2.24 to the pound, which now is valued at $3.20.

Figures prepared by the treasury on this basis show that persons who earn less than $1,280 a year will pay a direct federal tax of $49.18.

Sales Tax Widened.

Additional revenue will be obtained by a special war time levy on corporations, graduated according to the percentage of profits in relation to capital, and by new taxes on undistributed profits. The commonwealth sales tax also has been widened to include articles previously exempt. A tax of 5 per cent has been levied on the estimated bulk, or $137,600,000 worth, of these goods, and 10 per cent on the estimated remaining amount of $12,800,000. The general sales tax itself has been increased from 8¼ per cent to 10 per cent and will affect goods having an estimated value of $579,200,000.

Workers Drop Protest.

The taxation plan has drawn protests from many workers and has caused several strikes, but objections were withdrawn when the government promised it would guard against excessive wartime profits for manufacturers.

Some munitions workers now earn as much as $28 a week with overtime, and they claim the tax scheme was forcing them to give up their overtime pay, that they were contributing in effect, the extra time and labor gratis to the national war effort.

Bystander Rescues Man After He Leaps Into Lake

Park Policeman Stanley Unander administered artificial respiration, and Aden was taken to County hospital, where his condition was reported good. Aden said he had been drinking and had suffered from insomnia.

ASSAIL BRITAIN'S CASTE SYSTEM IN EDUCATING YOUTH

Laborites Oppose Aid for Schools of Rich.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 4.—An attack on the "caste" system of education in Britain was launched in the house of commons last week by Laborite Aneurin Bevan and other speakers when the school aid bill came up for second reading.

The arguments at times were so bitter that Bevan and Capt. E. A. Fitz Ray, the speaker, twice clashed, each charging the other with losing his temper or behaving like a dictator.

The object of the bill, as explained by Herwald Ramsbotham, president of the board of education, is to assist the so-called public schools to meet their financial difficulties in wartime by allowing school governors to use trust funds or endowments "for purposes other than those intended by the founders," such as constructing new buildings or repairing bomb damage.

Fear for Scholarships.

Despite Ramsbotham's assurances that the bill provided stringent safeguards against use of the funds to "bolster up decaying institutions," opponents voiced fears that funds for scholarships on which poorer students depend would be reduced and the money diverted to other purposes.

Bevan opposed the bill as "undesirable." He said that "only recently parliament gave the government the power to close down many private businesses," and declared "it would be a good thing to close down class luxuries, like these public schools."

Bevan asserted that the sons of the wealthy should be sent to state schools the same as the poor, but the speaker ruled him out of order for speaking beyond the limits of the bill. This brought the first clash. The second came when D. L. Lipson, Independent, speaking in support of the bill, lauded the public school's contribution to the country. Bevan objected that he had been "refused an opportunity to criticize" the schools, but was cut short by the speaker. "This is a public school conspiracy," Bevan charged before he subsided.

Says School System Outworn.

The chief Labor spokesman, C. G. Ammon, deplored what he said was the "curious anomaly that the national emergency should have been used by the government to uphold a system which to a large extent is outworn and called for an entire change."

He drew protests when he declared that "it has been said that Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, but the battle for Britain is won in the secondary schools."

The Labor party would not vote against the bill, he announced, altho it strongly disapproved of it. He asked that public schools be forced to publish financial accounts, the same as universities.

The bill has passed the house of lords despite criticisms that it established a dictatorship over education.

GUARD ON U. S. FREEDOM URGED BY GOV. GREEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pere Marquette State Park, Ill., May 4.—An all out effort to preserve the American heritage of freedom was urged upon the country's citizenry by Gov. Dwight Green this afternoon in an address dedicating a state owned hotel in this 1,756 acre Illinois park.

Before the native limestone lodge, in wooded bluffs overlooking the Illinois river, the chief executive said an inspiration for this country's future lay in the history of its past. He recalled that Marquette and Joliet first set foot in Illinois 270 years ago on the site of this park. He said that the pioneers who followed them "established and handed down to us a society in which the government is the servant of the people and the people are not subjects of the government.

"It is our duty to have the courage for an all out effort to preserve this heritage."

Walter A. Rosenfield, director of public works, welcomed to the ceremonies delegations from the adjacent East St. Louis metropolitan area. He said the new lodge was a valuable addition to the Illinois system of 29 parks totaling 18,000 acres.

Todd school students are expected to attend the première as are members of the Little Theater Players of Kenosha, Wis., Welles' home town.

PERSONAL LOANS

How you can borrow $100 without endorsers or guarantors if you can pay back $6.43 a month—A quick, simple way to borrow

HAVE you a money problem which a personal loan will help you solve? Here is a simple way to borrow without endorsers or guarantors—and at rates substantially below the lawful maximum. If you have a job and can make monthly payments you are invited to come in and see us about getting a loan up to $300.

Suppose that you need $100. Find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payments convenient for you to make. Twelve monthly installments of $9.77 each, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. Or, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months, will also repay a $100 loan.

All you do

All you do to apply for your loan is to acquaint us with your problem. Loans are made on furniture, car or note. But we attach far more importance to character and regular income than to the value of security. It is unnecessary to ask outsiders to sign the loan papers with you. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit.

Get your loan for less

The payments in the table include all charges. These charges are calculated at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. The Small Loan Law permits us to charge a substantially higher rate than this. Some finance companies do charge a higher rate. We publish our payments and rate of charge so that you may compare costs before you borrow.

Phone or visit us for full information without obligation.

Come, Whittelsey. Isn't this carrying protection too far?"

You may think that the role of policeman in literature is confined to mystery stories, but a certain New York department store could tell you better.

When this establishment recently ran a book sale advertisement in The New York Times, so many book lovers rushed the counters that the management had to call in police to maintain order! In three days, 75,000 books were sold — and that's a lot of books in anybody's library!

Such advertising results indicate why The Times gets the lion's share of Manhattan department store advertising . . . and they carry a very pertinent message to any advertiser in the country's richest market!

NEW DUPONT HOUSE PAINT

amazes thousands

AND it's just the paint for your house! The new Du Pont House Paint starts whiter, and stays white longer because it's self-cleaning! It forms a tough, durable film which protects the surface from rust, rot, or decay. Like all paints, it collects dirt on exposure to the elements. As time goes on, however, a fine white powder forms on the surface of this new paint. This powder is washed away by heavy rains, carrying the dirt with it and exposing a fresh white surface. Usually this self-cleaning process starts after a few months of exposure under normal conditions of weather, but may be delayed under unusual climatic or dirt-collecting conditions. Because the "self-cleaning" process is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

If you want light COLORS...

You'll get the same extra-quality results with the new Du Pont Tru-Tint formula. These lovely light colors are "self-cleaning," too! While Du Pont House Paint costs no more than other good paints, it saves you money because it needs fewer repaintings. Next time you paint, be sure your painter uses Du Pont House Paint!

There's a Du Pont dealer near you. For his name, see your Classified Telephone Directory, or phone Brunswick 6900. Du Pont Co., 2100 Elston Avenue.

NBC HEAD WARNS BUROCRATS MOVE TO CONTROL RADIO

Denounces FCC Ruling as Forerunner of Chaos.

New York, May 4 (AP).—Niles Trammel, president of the National Broadcasting company, declared in a statement tonight that new regulations regarding radio networks promulgated by the federal communications commission are a "definite step toward complete government control of radio."

Making public the new rules yesterday, the commission declared they were intended to increase the number of networks and give individual stations a "wider latitude" in their dealings with the networks.

"Even a casual reading of the regulations set forth in the report adopted by a majority of the commission is enough to indicate that chaos, not further competition, would result from the blow aimed at the American system of broadcasting," Trammel asserted.

Fears Further Rule Over Air.

The NBC chief said it was his opinion the regulations "make certain a confusion that must lead to further burocratic grip upon the freedom of the air."

"I do not purport to know," he said, "why such a bombshell should be exploded at this critical time in the life of our country, when the fullest use of the nation's radio facilities is demanded."

Trammell said it was his belief that congress never contemplated, when it created the commission in 1934, that the "commission would attempt to remake the American system of broadcasting without even consulting the congress."

Year after year, Trammell added, the commission had renewed licenses of independent stations affiliated with NBC networks "in recognition of the fact that the stations performed a service in the public interest."

Mutual Repudiates Criticism.

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—The Mutual Broadcasting system today announced that Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, did not represent Mutual's position in criticizing new broadcasting regulations adopted by the federal communications commission.

Fred Weber, general manager of Mutual, made public a telegram to Miller which said Mutual objected to any resolution of the association's directors being applied to the current situation because the subject is "a controversial one affecting competitive conditions between the older networks and Mutual."

Miller said in a statement yesterday that the new FCC regulations menaced "the freedom of the American system of broadcasting."

RABBIT, 5 CATS, AND 2 DOGS ALL DINE IN HARMONY

Peter Rabbit, five cats, and two dogs dine together very happily indeed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Paquin, 1067 Ainslie street—unless a hungry dog begins elbowing Peter Rabbit around. Peter Rabbit does some elbowing himself, then, and gruffly announces that he'll take the dog food or the milk if he wants it, but he really has a heart of gold and sticks to his lettuce after he has let the others know who's boss. Peter, a white Easter rabbit, was just as charming as he could be when a photographer called yesterday to take a picture of the happy family. So were Snowball, a wire hair terrier; Tuffy, the mother cat, and all her kittens. Trixie, the fox terrier, was out dining with friends.

RESCUE HUSBAND AND WIFE AFTER BOAT CAPSIZES

Alfred J. Schickling and his wife, Louise, of 2105 East 67th street, were rescued yesterday after their 12 foot sailboat capsized in the lake 200 yards off 74th street.

Mrs. Schickling was wearing a life preserver, and remained afloat until she was rescued by the occupants of a motorboat. Schickling, an insurance clerk, was picked up by several boys in a rowboat.

He remained in the rowboat near his capsized craft until coastguards under Machinist's Mate Ralph Townsend of the Jackson Park station arrived. Schickling bought the sailboat Saturday.

Survivors Recall Historic Riot

Three retired policemen who were assigned to Des Plaines street station 55 years ago when the Haymarket riot broke out. They met yesterday on their annual reunion. Left to right: Bert Cowdrey, George Roycroft, and Frank P. Tyrrell.

2 MORE CAMPS APPROVED FOR WAR OBJECTORS

Approval of two more civilian work camps for conscientious objectors to military service was announced yesterday by Dr. Charles F. Boss Jr., 740 Rush street, Chicago member of the board of directors of the National Service board for religious objectors.

The new camps are at Magnolia, Ark., and at Marietta, O. The former will be operated under direction of the Church of the Brethren Service committee and the latter under joint auspices of this committee and the Mennonite Central committee. There now are eight such camps.

Dr. Boss explained the difficult procedure in securing approval for a civilian work camp. He said the problem includes not only acreage, quarters, sanitary facilities, and other equipment, but also proximity to work projects approved by government agencies, such as reclamation, soil conservation, and forestry.

DIES AS SHE LEAVES CHURCH.

Mrs. Louise Storrs, 60 years old, 4103 South Richmond street, died of a heart attack yesterday as she was leaving the McKinley Park Methodist Episcopal church, 38th street and Washtenaw avenue.

Meet in Station

The 55th annual reunion of the Haymarket Riot Veterans' association was held yesterday in the Des Plaines street station and was attended by two surviving veterans of the riot. A third and surviving veteran, Herman F. Krueger, who does not belong to the association, did not attend.

The two who attended are Capt. Frank Tyrrell, 83 years old, of 643 Clarence avenue, Oak Park, and George Roycraft, 94, of 3304 Schubert street. Bert Cowdrey, 1104 North Massasoit avenue, who was an operator at the station at the time, but did not take part in suppressing the riot, appeared for the ceremonies.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the riot in which eight policemen were killed and 74 injured in an anarchist uprising.

Like to Dine Out? Well, Sir, It's Just the Week for It

CHICAGO POLES HONOR BIRTH OF FALLEN NATION

Observe 150th Year of Polish Constitution.

Thousands of Chicagoans of Polish descent took part in ceremonies in Humboldt park yesterday on the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Polish constitution. Speakers were of one voice in asserting that Poland will be free again.

The patriotic ceremonies were preceded by a parade which started at Noble street and Milwaukee avenue. More than 3,000 Poles, many of them dressed in native costumes, marched to Augusta boulevard, west to Mozart street and north into the park. Flags of Poland and the United States were displayed.

Kosciuszko's Memory Honored.

A wreath was placed at the foot of the monument of Thaddeus Kosciuszko, Polish national hero, who distinguished himself in the American revolutionary war on the side of the colonists.

I. K. Rozmarek, president of the Polish National Alliance and chairman of the program, said suffering, trampled Poland looks to America for deliverance. Speaking at the foot of the monument, he said:

"Americans will continue to lend a helping hand to our people across the sea who are trodden under the heel of the conqueror.

"More than five million Americans of Polish ancestry today rededicate themselves to the principles of American democracy and are ever ready to defend this nation and the liberty and freedom for which it stands."

Public Officials Speak.

Other speakers included Judge Edward S. Scheffler, chief justice of the Municipal court; County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, Mayor Kelly, Francis X. Swietlik, grand censor of the alliance, and Mrs. Maria L. Czyz, its vice president.

Taking part in the program were Bronislawa Majewska, Polish-American singer, and choruses of Polish singers. Patriotic songs of the United States and Poland were sung. The Very Rev. Casimer Sztuczko, C.S.C., pastor of Holy Trinity Catholic church, Noble and Chapin streets, opened the ceremonies with an invocation.

Lasker Estate to Be Open for Flower Show

Mill Road Gardens, the Lake Forest estate presented to the University of Chicago by Albert D. Lasker, will be opened to the public for a spring flower festival from May 17 to June 1.

Tulips, giant pansies, and wild flowers, flanked by rows of blossoming apple and pear trees, will be among major attractions. Another of the estate's marvels is its topiary garden, in which Chinese elms have been clipped in the shapes of animals and human beings and in geometric designs.

Here also may be seen geranium trees nine feet high, bay trees more than 50 years old, and six miles of clipped hedges ranging from 1 foot to 35 feet in height.

Flowers will be blooming on the borders of south vista, a hedged, close cropped lawn stretching 400 yards from the manor house to the outdoor swimming pool and the dove cote.

In the greenhouses will be petunias, geraniums, fuchsias, tuberous rooted begonias, and gloxinia. The greenhouse display will include the cultivation of nectarines, peaches, figs, and grapes.

The 50 room manor house, with its collection of antique furniture of many periods, will be open to the public for the first time, as will the recreation building, with its complete theater.

Admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, with a similar additional charge for inspecting the manor house. There will be free parking space for motorists.

The North Western and North Shore railroads have made arrangements for connecting bus service. The estate is on Old Mill road a mile west of Waukegan road.

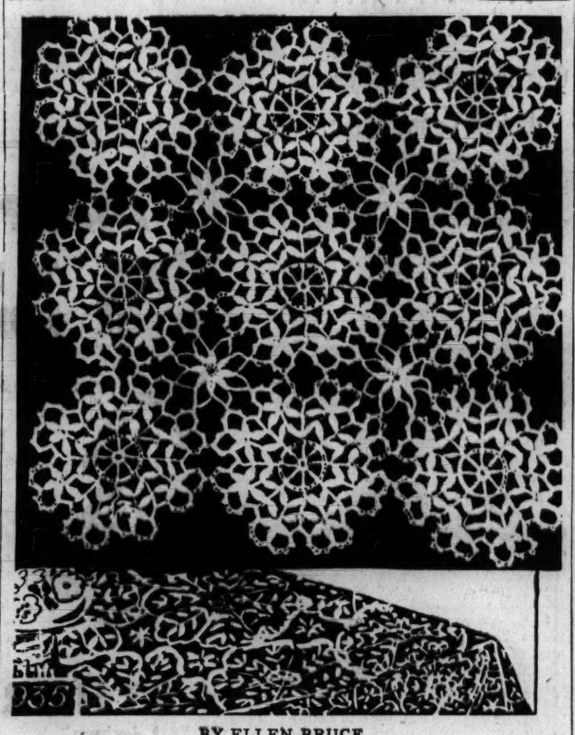
Medallion for a Tablecloth



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Here is a lovely crocheted design which creates a handsome tablecloth from individual medallions. These medallions are not difficult to make and may be completed in a short time. The same motifs may be arranged for a dresser scarf or luncheon doily. As the sketch illustrates, a pattern of this motif may be attempted with ease by the amateur.

For instructions in crocheting the medallion for the tablecloth, No. 935, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Music Wells Up from Chorus of 400 Children

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The singing of the children's chorus at yesterday's Civic Music association festival at Orchestra hall was as unpretentious as a dandelion and as completely divorced from the grand and imposing things of the world. What is more, it possessed the same power to flood even a jaded and cynical person with sudden happiness.

These were a portion of the children who all year long have been receiving instruction from the associations' teachers—in schools and parks and orphan asylums and settlement houses. Assembled yesterday to the number of about 400 to sing at the festival under Marx E. Oberndorfer's direction, they proved that their childishness had not been trained out of them.

They sang accurately and flexibly, and all their squeals and screams had been refined away, but there was an attractive freshness and dewiness and childish seriousness in everything they did. And far from giving any suggestion of the studied or labored, they let the music well up out of them as naturally as water from a spring.

They sang folk songs of several nations as well as various other simple pieces. The audience was delighted. When the conductor tried to get them [the members of the audience] to join in a repetition of Carpenter's "The Home Road," they refused to sing and listened to the children do it again instead.

If this were not the music column, and if it were not so unfashionable to put forth trite ideas, it would be a delight to call attention to another aspect of the festival. These children's forbears came from three continents and a score of nations, yet here were their descendants cooperating with one another as harmoniously as if race were a mere accident of nature and wars the most complete foolishness! You could see the melting pot working—and apparently working very well.

Besides Mr. Oberndorfer, the persons responsible for the quality of the children's singing are Helen Protheroe Baker, Esther Haight, Mrs. Russell Hendrickson, and Mrs. Earl M. Oren. They have been doing the field instruction thru the year.

The Civic orchestra not only accompanied the chorus [using orchestrations by Mr. Oberndorfer] but also provided three purely instrumental numbers. David Van Vactor conducted the overture to Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and a sprightly, epigrammatic Divertimento of his own. A quintet of wind instruments played Leo Sowerby's witty "'Pop' Goes the Weasel."

Looking at Hollywood by John Chapman

Diary of a Movie Correspondent.

Hollywood, Cal., May 4.—Sunday—Last night's 20th Century-Fox studio club party at the Biltmore was the best of those I've seen, and confirms a conviction that movie actors, by themselves, make an uninteresting group. Wherever stars gather as the main attraction, they are so busy being self-conscious and well behaved that they forget to have a good time. It is only when other movie workers—stage hands, cameramen, office boys, technicians—get in on a party that the show becomes a success. Milton Berle M. C.'d last night's affair, working like a Trojan horse because all his movie bosses were there, and he did the best job of its kind I have ever witnessed.

Monday—Read Frederick Hazlitt Brennan's play, "We Fought at Arques," which E. Selwyn will produce on Broadway—probably under the title of "Mr. Wookey." It's about a raffish but highly moral Cockney family which undergoes bombings on the London waterfront, and as a production it should be the noisiest drama of all time. It looks like Charles Laughton for the screen rôle of Wookey. Henry O'Neill nominates Whitford Kane, and I second the nomination. The feminine lead is a battered but proud variety stripteaser, and the two nominees for this rôle are Tallulah Bankhead and Binnie Barnes.

Tuesday—To Warners' to see Ann Sheridan for the first time since she returned to the job. She's in the musical "Navy Blues," and it's the first musical she has ever been in—altho she has had song numbers before. The song numbers don't worry her a whit—but she's terrified of a sequence coming up in which she's a hog caller. With Jack Oakie and Martha Raye on the sidelines to kid her, she's afraid she'll never get thru with it. . . . Style note: Ann is now wearing white enamel on her fingernails—not on the whole nail, but just on the tip, and the rest is left just as nature made it.

Wednesday—A day of word mongering, and as a reluctant but dutiful husband to a combination TABS [to aid British services] tea and hat show at Chasen's. It isn't so bad, of course, once one gets there, for Claire Trevor is the hostess and such honeys as Georgia Carroll, Kay Aldridge, and Gayle Mellott are modeling the things.

Thursday—To Paramount, on the "Birth of the Blues" and "Aloma" sets. The "Blues" set, turn-of-the-century New Orleans, is a fine antique, and I ask Victor Schertzinger where his staff turned up such ancient works of art as old-style light globes—the double-loop carbon filament kind. So he begins reminiscing about properties and tells of a man who many years ago began collecting the things studios threw away, and renting them to other studios. In his office was a battered desk which he bought for $1.50. Often some movie man would want to buy it, and from a drawer the owner would take a little book, a book on the rentals of that desk alone. And it had grossed $13,000—which is an investment even in movieland!

Friday—A morning gathering stuff about what actors do with their money and I think Eddie Albert's investment the oddest. He has a couple of fishing boats that go for sharks in order to get shark livers for vitamin laboratories.

Saturday—Fast to a chair-bottom all day, and in the evening to San Francisco for a day's holiday.

Good Morning!

No picture favored with such stars as Alice Faye, Don Ameche, and J. Carrol Naish; with glorious technicolor; with a bevy of beautiful girls could be a complete washout. But ANY picture should have something to offer less clumsy in the way of a story than the one which weighs down "That Night in Rio."

It is a ponderous conceit that seeks to play up South America in a happy light and stress our amicable relations with her. After elephantine urbanities it handcuffs to Mr. Ameche a dual rôle that hasn't much of interest to offset its glaring incredibility.

He's seen as a North American night club entertainer and as a gallant and financially embarrassed Brazilian baron. The former is violently adored by his co-star, Carmen Miranda. The latter is the philandering husband of the lovely and, in this piece, slightly bovine Alice Faye.

Larry Martin's amiable impersonation of the baron [whom he takes off on the stage] in real life and in the latter's own home at the behests of Duarte's business partners who wish certain parties to think Duarte's in Rio the while he is some place else trying to put over a deal, provides the key situation.

On this hang much labored comedy, inane dialog, lamentable overacting on the part of Miss Miranda and some songs by her which will probably prove popular.

In all, "That Night in Rio" is like unto an opulently beautiful woman, arrayed expensively but with little taste—and pretty tiresome company.

Critic Adds "Cabin in the Sky" to List of Best Musical Shows

BY CECIL SMITH.

In three seasons of drama reporting I have had occasion to review only two productions which fully exploited the best possibilities of the musical stage in their beauty and imagination, their pointedness and wit, their richness of conception and excellence of execution. These two were "I Married an Angel" and "One for the Money."

And now "Cabin in the Sky" must be added to this short and exacting list. Other musicals this year have given us brilliant individual performances, loud humor, topical satire, and even a very small amount of good singing and dancing. But "Cabin in the Sky" provides complete and rounded entertainment in every department, at the same time that it reaches successfully up into the realm of serious and touching art.

A fantasy performed by an all-Negro cast immediately suggests "The Green Pastures," and "Cabin in the Sky" does indeed have a few overtones of that celebrated classic of Negro folk lore. But its plot and its methods of presentation are far more sophisticated and up to date, and it constantly possesses a more convincing connection with real everyday life.

The action presents the struggle between Lucifer Jr. and the Lawd's General for the soul of Little Joe, who has a hard time being good. Petunia, with her deep faith in prayer, assists the Lawd's General, while giddy Georgia Brown does her best to add force to the devil's overtures.

A great artist, Ethel Waters as Petunia sings most affectingly and acts better and more easily, even, than in "Mamba's Daughters." Hers is one of the truly fascinating personalities of the stage—a unique compound of bold, hearty humor and sober, concentrated intensity. The conflict of these qualities enriches her singing and acting with the most remarkable content of both pathos and downright ribaldry.

The dancing of Katherine Dunham's group is superb, covering a surprising range of style and yet remaining always electric. Miss Dunham herself is curiously but attractively cast as the light minded Georgia Brown. The group dances are full of spectacular individual contributions, notably in the strong, primitive vigor of Archie Savage and the lithe speed and elevation of Talley Beatty.

There is not room to tell you in detail this morning how uniformly good the cast is. Todd Duncan sings admirably and impersonates the Lawd's General expertly and sympathetically. Dooley Wilson's Little Joe is a masterpiece of intuitive understanding and projections, and Rex Ingram makes a ripe character of Lucifer Jr.

Costumes, settings, lighting, and direction are all of the highest order. The performance moves at an unflagging pace, and there are no waste motions or false expenditures of effort. You will not often spend a more rewarding evening in the theater.

"CABIN IN THE SKY."

Musical play in two acts and nine scenes. Music by Vernon Duke. Lyrics by John Latouche. Book by Lynn Root. Settings and costumes by Boris Aronson. Book directed by Albert Lewis. Entire production staged by George Balanchine. Presented by Albert Lewis, in association with Vinton Freedley, in the Selwyn theater, Sunday evening, May 4, 1941.

THE PLAYERS.

Youth Conference Hears Leaders of Three Great Faiths

The first city-wide youth institute of human relations, held yesterday at Loyola Community theater, stressed the need of basic respect for the dignity and value of the individual. Three widely known leaders of three religious faiths confirmed each other at this point. These were Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, founder and national director of CYO, Rabbi Louis L. Binstock of Temple Sholom, and Dean Charles W. Gilkey of the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, University of Chicago. The institute, first to be conducted by the recently organized Youth council of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews, was attended by 250 representatives of youth groups of many denominations.

ESCAPE.
INSTALMENT XIX.

McFee was making a good job of it; Dave could hear him still panting.

"He will have a cracked head next time," McFee said.

Beal said angrily, "There ain't goin' to be no next time, McFee. Personally, I wouldn't care if you knocked his head into the next room, but he's goin' to stand trial. And we're goin' to separate you two."

McFee didn't say anything. Ernie said with bitter relish, "I got just the place for Coyle, Harve. Let's give him the 'icebox.'"

"He's liable to get sick," Beal said. "It's cold there in that cell, in front of the window."

"Maybe it'll take some of the salt out of him," Ernie said. Dave heard him tramp down the cell block and unlock the door to the end cell, the "icebox." He came back and Beal said dubiously, "I dunno. It's cold there."

"Hell, Sholto's cold, too—if he bothered to buy him!"

Dave was picked up. He opened his eyes a little to see how Beal was holding his legs. Beal faced him and grabbed his feet at the ankles and lifted. Ernie held him under the arms, so that his hands almost dragged the floor. Beal was too busy to watch him as he maneuvered out thru the cell door and into the corridor. This wasn't so good, Dave reflected swiftly. Ernie was the strongest, the fastest thinker, and he had hold of his arms. But he would have to go thru with it anyway.

They stumbled down the corridor with him, and then Beal backed around into the open door of the cell. Dave did two things at once, then. His arms, which were hanging down to the floor, suddenly went stiff as he grabbed Ernie's boots. And with his feet, he kicked savagely at Sheriff Beal's belly.

Ernie, with his legs pinioned, was driven off balance by the kick, and he fell backwards, taking Dave with him. And Beal, kicked in the belly, also fell backwards into the cell.

Ernie let go one hand to break his fall, and Dave twisted. He landed on top of Ernie, squirmed over and with one vicious bat with his hand drove Ernie's head into the stone floor. Ernie slacked unconscious under him, and still lying on him, Dave grabbed his gun and rolled over beside him and looked up at Beal.

Beal was gagging for breath, sitting up, but he had stubbornly gone for his gun. Dave swiveled his up and said, "Want a shoot-out, Beal?"

Beal was a courageous man. But right now, coming half erect, he was sick and gagging for breath. It took some swift thinking to do what he did then. He dropped his gun as if it were hot, and fell to his knees, his arms around his belly. Dave vaulted into the cell and shoved him over on his back.

Beal was making queer sucking sounds, like a fish that is out of water, his mouth working spasmodically. Dave ripped off Beal's belt, laid it out on the floor, then rolled Sheriff Beal over on it, face down. He yanked the belt up tight, pinning Sheriff Beal's arms to his sides.

Leaving him, Dave stepped out into the hall and dragged Ernie in beside Beal. Ernie was limp as a sack, so that it was hard to get his shirt off him. Dave succeeded, however, and then put on Ernie's shirt, shedding his own torn and bloody one. Then he trussed up Ernie the same way he had trussed Beal.

When he was finished, Beal had quit gagging. He was looking at Dave thru sick eyes as if he would like to murder him. Dave ripped his old shirt in half, balled it up in his right hand, straddled Beal and leveled his gun at him.

"I'm goin' to ask you just this once," Dave said. "Are you goin' to open your mouth and let me gag you, or am I goin' to have to clout you over the head?"

Afterwards, he did the same with Ernie, then he stepped out, shut the door, locked it and took the keys.

He went down the corridor to McFee's cell, unlocked it, and McFee stepped out.

"Goddlemighty!" McFee whispered. "I wouldn't of done that for $1,000."

"Nobody asked you to," Dave sneered. He handed him Sheriff Beal's gun and shell belt. "Put these on. We're goin' out now. I want you to stand in the door of the sheriff's office and take a look at the horses in sight. Pick a fast one. I'll do the same. Get on your horse and walk him, don't run him, out of town. Look like you belonged there, understand. Don't get panicky."

Dave rammed Ernie's gun in his waistband and led the way out into the office. Beal had been in the midst of writing a letter when he was interrupted by the fight. The paper, a broken line of writing across it, was lying beside an open ink bottle and the pen.

Dave walked into the open door and stood there, McFee beside him. "How about that black?" Dave asked looking down street.

"Good," McFee said shakily.

"I can't help it," McFee said softly. "Hell, I'm scared."

Dave sneered and set off down street, McFee behind him. They passed a couple of punchers, and Dave said, "Howdy," and received a pleasant reply.

Dave dropped McFee off at the black horse, and went on. The chestnut didn't look so good at close range. He passed him up and took a bay next to him. He mounted, pulled aside for a buckboard and team that was just swinging into the tie rail, and then put his horse into the street to wait for McFee.

McFee came up. He was glancing from side to side, and his mouth was grim. He was sweating, Dave could see.

Dave waited until McFee was even with him, and then they walked their horses down the street. People looked at them, and glanced away, incurious. One or two people looked for quite a long moment, then went about their business, thinking they were mistaken. They rode peacefully out of town.

* * *

For its headquarters, the Three River's Cattle company had taken over an old homesteader's stone house on one of the long benches that jutted out from the foothills of the Corazon's west slope. A log wing had been added to the three stone rooms, a porch flanking the whole of the south side, and a bunkhouse had been built. It squatted there on the flats amidst a tangle of pole corrals and outbuildings, unlovely, bleak, and treeless.

On the east side of the log wing, there was a small rectangle of flower garden which was filled with blooms, a chicken wire fence around it. That, however, was the only touch of color or neatness in the whole place. Bottles, tobacco tins, cans, and pieces of worn-out gear littered the yard around the house and bunkhouse. It was as slovenly as an unmade bed.

Wallace, because he had got in late the night before, had slept thru the early morning hours, and now his crew, numbering 15 men, were loafing around the horse corral awaiting orders. Marty Cord, who usually gave out the morning's work, had not returned yet. There was no segundo, for Wallace trusted no man other than Cord. And to disturb Wallace for any reason whatsoever was to invite being fired, the men had long since learned.

Long after 9 o'clock, Wallace came to the door of the main house in his sock feet, his pale hair rumpled, sleep still heavy in his eyes. He saw the men clotted in the shade of the barn and corral, and he cursed softly. Cord hadn't come home last night, either. He went back into the house, got his boots and hat, and started out across the yard. His face was ugly with temper this morning. It was yesterday that Dave Coyle and McFee had walked out of the county jail, leaving Sheriff Beal and Ernie See tied and gagged in a locked cell. He had had them both in the palm of his hand, as neatly framed as two men could be, and then that blundering Beal had let them slip thru his hands.

Never Allow Ennui to Rob You of Charm

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

One hears a great deal about preparedness these days, about building up physical stamina to resist the strain of what may lie ahead, but there's a certain preparedness that needs no threat of war to make apparent its need. It's with us in times of peace as well as in periods of unrest.

We speak of that ennui that is likely to descend upon women after 30, in the mid-30s and thereafter, unless they are prepared against it, know its symptoms for exactly what they are, and meet them with a determination never, never to succumb.

Women of this age are inclined to suspect that all the excitement of living is over for them; that there isn't any more keen enjoyment in store. The feeling of depression settles down on face, body, and mind; loneliness or irritation sets in along with restlessness and general discontentment.

Very busy women, women with a well planned life, escape this era of discontentment. Perhaps they were forewarned of it. Perhaps its symptoms never struck them. In any event, consciously or unconsciously, prepared against it they are.

Our object today is simply to call women's attention to the inevitability of this period for most women, and to advise them to be forewarned against it and prepared to meet it with the right weapons of defense.

It attacks one along about the time the mirror reveals a woman is not so young, fresh, and attractive as her mental vision heretofore implied. Perhaps there are telltale lines, sagging along the jawline. Gray is showing in the hair. She is discouraged because the hair lacks vitality, life, luster, and because it is harder to manage. And the figure isn't what it was. From this she goes on reviewing her life. It isn't what she planned, perhaps. She's bored with it. That's the moment to get to work on both body and mind, bringing each to a new perfection.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

When several alternative lines of play closely resemble each other, declarer does himself and his partner a great injustice unless he takes the time to consider the respective merits of each course. Consider today's hand:

South, dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH

WEST

♣ A Q

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's last bid was distinctly optimistic. His previous leap to four hearts had amply described his values. West's opening lead, however, created a beautiful opportunity for the declarer. West selected the spade king. After winning with dummy's ace, declarer, concluded the best chance was to lead the jack of spades and pass it, discarding a diamond from his own hand. This plan would succeed if the heart suit were divided 2-2 so that the heart jack would be an eventual entry to the long spades. West won the queen and naturally shifted to the suit that declarer had discarded. The diamond ace won and two rounds of hearts were led, ending in dummy. East, however, still had a spade stopper and a trump, and altho declarer was able to discard on the established ten of spades, he still had to take the club finesse, which lost.

Declarer had chosen a fair plan, but not the best. It was possible to determine the break of hearts before making the final decision of how to go about spade establishment. After winning the spade ace declarer should have ruffed a low spade, then should have laid down the ace and a low heart. Trumps not breaking, it would do no good to pass the jack of spades, because West, on winning, certainly would return a diamond and remove dummy's entry while East still had a trump. Therefore, declarer would be forced to ruff another low spade. This ruff would knock out West's queen so that, after drawing East's remaining trump, declarer could comfortably return to the diamond ace, cash the jack and ten of spades for two diamond discards, and then freely take the club finesse, not caring much whether or not it succeeded.

Packaged Ice Cream Mixes Aid the Cook

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There are many good ice cream powders and sirups which cost very little and from which a cook may easily prepare delicious desserts with the help of the refrigerator freezing unit. A package of vanilla ice cream mix will make not only vanilla ice cream, but a dozen variations as well.

To suggest a few: Follow directions which come with the preparation and make these additions or substitutions:

1. Add ½ cup or more coarsely crushed toffee candy, peanut brittle, chipped chocolate, or peppermint stick candy.

2. Substitute strong, freshly made coffee for half the milk called for in the recipe.

3. Add ½ cup mashed bananas, ¼ cup chopped nuts, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and 1 tablespoon sugar to the vanilla mix before freezing. It's really better to add nuts when cream is partly frozen, if this is convenient.

4. Add ¼ cup finely chopped candied cherries and pineapple and ¼ cup chopped nuts.

5. Add ¾ cup crushed, sweetened strawberries to the recipe and reduce the amount of milk slightly.

6. Use a few drops of green coloring to tint the ice cream mix, and add ½ cup chopped pistachio nuts and ¼ teaspoon almond flavoring.

Pineapple Parfait.

[Serves eight.]

1 cup pineapple juice
½ cup sugar
½ cup finely chopped canned or cooked fresh pineapple
4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and light
1 pint whipping cream
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Boil pineapple juice and sugar together until the temperature reaches 230 degrees, or until the sirup spins a thread. Pour slowly, beating constantly, over beaten egg yolks. Beat thoroly. The hot sirup will cook the egg yolks. Chill. Add chopped pineapple and fold in whipped cream, vanilla and salt. Freeze until firm in refrigerator tray.

Tapioca Coconut Bisque.

[One quart.]

½ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups milk, scalded
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 cup whipping cream

Add tapioca to milk and cook in the top of a double boiler for 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear and mixture is thickened. Strain by stirring thru a fine sieve onto the salt and sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Cool. Beat eggs until light and fluffy and fold into tapioca mixture. Fold in whipped cream, coconut and vanilla. Freeze in refrigerator.

Monday, May 5.

Universal Day—This may prove to be a very hectic week, so keep a few quiet hours for yourself today. Call on your spiritual reserves.

This Week—I've been giving you the forecast for the month of May in general, but I'd like to talk about this particular week, as I think it is going to be a momentous one. In the first place, we have the 11-universal month which makes all this period highly jittery with plenty of nerve tension and lots of fears, rumors, and anxiety. Since the world will be under this powerful master number, as it is called, and during this month we have one day which is to be the other powerful master number—22, then we may expect that many of the forces at work will reach a peak when this number comes along—and the exact day is next Sunday! For the sake of those who would like to watch the numbers work out, I will go into more detail this week on the vibrations at work.

What May a Mother Expect of the Baby?

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

There isn't any hard and fast set of rules which can be said to determine just what a mother may expect of her baby or growing child at a given age. So many different factors have to be taken into consideration in the case of each individual child.

It is a good thing to get early the general drift of a child's progress from phase to phase. There are some mothers who can do this, who actually seem to be born for motherhood. They go along side by side with their baby, sensing what he needs and why he does things.

But there are many mothers, loving and meaning to be kind, who cannot adjust their ideas and their management to the rapid changes thru which little children pass, and who consequently feel utterly baffled by the problems that confront them. They either think their child is "bad," or that they themselves are failures, or both.

What you don't expect is likely to happen almost any time. Children say and do such unforeseen, surprising things. But what you do expect is also quite sure to happen as far as their general growth and development are concerned, provided you do know what it is natural to expect.

Snap, Comfort in New Shoes for Summer

BY REA SEEGER.

Important footnotes for summer make entertaining showings of what inspired designers can do with color, featherweight fabrics, such as linens, cottons, straw cloth, summer suedes, and the tricky new materials of mesh. Fastidious shoppers have been asking for dark footgear for wear in town and the best summer models ever unpacked are ready to fill that demand.

Black, brown, and navy street pumps and slippers, with choice of heel heights, are made of an air conditioned screen material and in a crocheted mesh. The screen fabric in the black pumps looks for all the world like the shiny freshly varnished window screening. Patent leather heels, a perky instep bow, and a band of trim make them even more a shining success.

The crocheted mesh stuff has a grand dull texture, thin and flexible, and is used for the entire model just like the screening mesh. Heels are covered with the same mesh so your seven's will look as small as a four B model size . . . that's foot magic typically summer of 1941.

There are street pumps with medium heels and a neat bow on the instep; sandals with high heels and a maze of straps over the instep. Dark sooty suedes, as thin as nothing at all on the feet, achieve even more summer foot comfort with perforations from toe to heel. Even the floppy big bows on the instep of the high heeled pumps are perforated to match the remainder of the pump.

White footgear, specially designed for country and vacation wardrobes, are dazzling creations cut with the same magic as the all black summer finds. Elasticized models use that stretchable stuff for three-fourth's of the shoe, the heel, and back heel sections of the plain suede.

Closed toe pumps with a medium walking heel are welcome arrivals in white suede with a tailored bow. Low heeled sandals, and plenty of comfortable platform models, together with the classics of brown and white combines complete an almost bewildering supply of summer foot flattery . . . and both the dark street shades and the whites are easily matched with small, medium or large bags of the same outline and fabric.

Their main recreation while here is listening to afternoon baseball broadcasts. . . . Allis McKay, formerly of Chicago, whose first book, Woman About Town, was a story of Chicago near north siders, and whose new book, They Came to a River, was recently published, now lives in Port Blakely, Wash.

Most amusing event of last week was the phony lecture given inside one of Chicago's most conservative clubs. Announcements to members said Maj. T. Stribling St. George would talk on "Within Gestapo Walls." At the meeting the chairman announced that Maj. St. George had been unable to come and had sent a noted East Indian, Maj. Kissen Singh, in his place. The lecturer turned out to be a well known La Salle street broker, barely recognizable in his white turban, wearing a little black mustache, and affecting a foreign accent. Club member stooges in the audience protested the asked-for pledge of secrecy as to what he would reveal, and a couple of members stalked out. His lecture was interrupted by the arrival of a befeathered and beflowered singer, Mme. Canta-Chanteri, and her accompanist, who thought she was scheduled for that afternoon's club meeting and forthwith started her program. Madame was immediately recognizable as Mrs. Ballard Moore. Her program in turn was interrupted by the arrival of a woman in a floppy hat and smock who thought it was her day to lecture on gardens and proceeded to do so in the recognizable accents of Club Member Miss Sarah Hinde. All very authentically done and very, very funny. Written and directed by Club Member Mrs. Moore.

104th Birth Anniversary Observed by C. F. Johnson

Bloomington, Ill., May 4 [Special].—Charles F. Johnson, Marshall county's oldest resident, observed his 104th birthday anniversary today at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Esterdahl, with whom he lives near Wenona. He was born in Sweden and came to the United States with his wife in 1876. On his 100th anniversary, Mr. Johnson was taken for an airplane ride. A year ago, at a Republican rally at Wenona, he was seated as guest of honor with Dwight Green, then a candidate for the governorship.

BIG TRIPLE IS WRIGHT'S GOAL FOR WHIRLAWAY

Preakness Is Next for Derby Winner.

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—Whirlaway, winner of yesterday's Kentucky Derby, will now go east with the celebrated triple-crown as his goal. He has made the first step in this campaign and next Saturday at Pimlico he will undertake the second in the Preakness stakes at Pimlico. Next month will come the Belmont.

A Derby-Preakness-Belmont victory has been the aim of all owners of outstanding 3 year olds for many years, but in more recent seasons the Arlington Classic has come to figure prominently also in the struggle for the championship of this age division. Whirlaway is entered in this stake and his owner, Warren Wright, has indicated that he fully intends to send him up to Chicago for that event.

Only Four Triple Champs.

Only four horses have been able to complete the triple in the Derby, Preakness, and Belmont. These were Sir Barton in 1919, Gallant Fox in 1930, Omaha in 1935, and War Admiral in 1937.

Whirlaway is scheduled to leave Churchill Downs tomorrow on his trip to Baltimore. Three others from the Kentucky Derby field also are to go east to run in the Preakness. These are Porter's Cap, fourth in the Derby, Dispose, sixth, and Our Boots, eighth.

The other members of the Preakness field are expected to be Bold Irishman, King Cole, Curious Coin, and Attention.

Blinker Strategy Responsible?

Heading home, most horse folks credited Trainer Ben Jones' strategy with enabling Whirlaway to score his sensational $61,275 triumph. Removal of a blinker from the colt's left eye—the eye nearest the rail—shortly before post time is believed to have corrected Whirlaway's tendency to run wide at the turn, a tendency which had cost him several races. In his last 13 starts before the Derby, Whirlaway had worn blinkers on both eyes. In the Derby, with only one, he stayed close to the rail.

The victory of Whirlaway had been a popular one, but there were surprises, too, in the race such as the performance of Staretor, the 36 to 1 shot which finished second, eight lengths behind the winner.

Staretor hadn't been to the post since the Santa Anita meeting and he had done mighty little other than win a couple of overnight allowance races and run second in a $10,000 handicap. He's a very big fellow, who apparently has been developing slowly, racing very little. He went to the post only four times last year and was unable to get in the money. Hugh Nesbitt, California business man, picked him up at a bargain price before his Santa Anita campaign began. George Strate trained him for his good performance in the Derby.

He Really Went Faster.

Not only was there very little racing data to go on in comparing him to other members of the Derby field, but even the figures in his workouts failed to give an accurate index to his ability. In his last training move before the Derby, he worked the mile and a quarter in 2:12.

Actually he went much faster than the figures show, because on the run down the backstretch, he shied over toward his lead pony and rider who were waiting to pick him up on the next time around. Then he finished the drill running wide all the way.

The third place taken by Market Wise was none too surprising after his victory in the Wood Memorial on the preceding Saturday. Few expected him to come back with a first class performance, however, and he was held at 19 to 1 in the betting.

BRADLEY RIGHT ON TWO

Lexington, Ky., May 4 (AP).—Whirlaway's impressive victory in the Kentucky Derby yesterday was no surprise to E. R. Bradley, who has owned more Derby winners—four—than any one else.

Bradley, now taking his ease at his Idle Hour farm near here, and unable to attend the Derby, had predicted Whirlaway would win more than 10 days ago—and what's more, he had called the turn on Market Wise running third.

Bradley, now 81 years old, was ailing much of the winter and he sees very few people these days, but this morning he got a personal report on details of the race from Olin Gentry, the Idle Hour manager.

The famed breeder of thorobreds remarked that Whirlaway was a great horse and superior to any of the current 3 year olds if he gets the right ride.

Bradley for some time has held that to be a truly great horse a thorobred must be able to cover the last quarter of a mile and a quarter race—like the Derby—in 26 seconds. Whirlaway did it yesterday in 24.

Saving Democracy.

The men who founded our democracy
And planted holy freedom on our sod,
Knew well their grave responsibility
And never failed to seek the help of God;
Democracy with them was a success
Because man's welfare was a sacred trust,
And they were ever ready to suppress
Customs and laws that were not wholly just.
Today we trust in money and in might,
Most of us never darken a church door,
We have no common principles of right
And all traditions are just "pious lore";
Democracy is not saved by the sword

CUBS BREAK UP GIANTS' LOSING STREAK, 9 TO 4

Six Pitchers Share in a Fuzzy Exhibition.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 4.—The Cubs plunked into seventh place in the National league standings, a game out of the cellar, today when they absorbed their daily licking—a little more emphatically than usual. The Giants, who had lost their last six starts, faced six Cub pitchers at one time or another, starting with Larry French, the loser, and signing off with Claude Passeau, but wound up victors by a score of 9 to 4.

The Giants, as things turned out, made enough runs off French in his brief stay, even if the thrower parade which followed had been able to hold them runless. Cliff Melton, hitherto exclusively a sipper of the dregs of defeat, went all the way for the success and felt fine, after a modicum of worry while the Cubs were making two runs in the third and one in the seventh, when they had the bases loaded with none out. Dom Dallessandro's second homer in two days came in the ninth when it brought no cheer to any one except possibly Dom and some relatives in Reading, Pa.

What! Only Five?

Melton accomplished only five strikeouts, a blot on the record of any pitcher who pitches against the Cubs these cruel days. Three of these whiffs were by Bill Nicholson, who had several opportunities to become the league's leading run-batted-inner.

In an effort to cut down the daily whiff grist, Manager Jim Wilson today benched Bill Myers, who had fanned 20 times in his last 34 times at bat. His successor, Lou Stringer, made one hit, walked once and did not fan. Lou Novikoff also was restored to the starting lineup. This Lou drove in the Cubs' first two runs.

The two Cub runs in the third got under way when Al Todd, batting for French, knocked the first Chicago hit. A single! Stan Hack popped to Joe Orengo, but Stringer singled to right and he and Todd advanced on a wild pitch. Dallessandro walked, loading the bases, whereupon Nicholson perfected the first of his strikeouts. Novikoff singled to center, however, scoring Todd and Stringer. But Billy Herman lined to Burgess Whitehead.

Dom Busts One.

In the seventh Bob Sturgeon batted for Hack and singled, Stringer walked and Dallessandro singled, loading the bases. If all these base occupants had scored the count would have been tied. But only one got home.

Babe Young, who got all the way around on a drive Lou Novikoff lost against the Polo Grounds wall in New York yesterday, wasn't quite so fortunate on this fifth inning play when he tried to score from third on Bill Jurges' grounder to Stan Hack.. Hack threw to Clyde McCullough, the Cubs' catcher, (arrow indicates ball) and Young was out, but the Giants won, 9 to 4.

BOBBY RIGGS WINS TENNIS TITLE IN TENNESSEE MEET

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 4 (AP).—Bobby Riggs of Chicago defeated Billy Talbert of Cincinnati today to win the men's singles championship of the Tennessee Valley tennis tournament. The scores were 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4. In the women's final Pauline Betz of Winter Haven, Fla., defeated Mrs. Sarah Cooke, veteran top ranking star, 9-7, 1-6, 9-7.

Bobby Jones Shoots a 66, but Doesn't Even Qualify

Atlanta, Ga., May 4 (AP).—Bobby Jones shot a 66 in qualifying play for an East Lake Country club handicap tournament—and failed to get in the tournament. Jones has a four stroke plus handicap. With the play limited to the low 64 qualifiers, his 70 was one stroke out of the bracket when all scores were posted.

PHILADELPHIA GETS 5 IN FIRST ON FOUR ERRORS

Knickerbocker and Hoag Hit Homers.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox turned their backs on 13,091 admirers in Comiskey park yesterday, much to the distress of the latter but to the delight of Connie Mack's troupers, officially known as the Athletics. Jimmy Dykes' boys, always addicted to carelessness when a weakling shows up in the wake of a tough series, momentarily forgot all they ever knew about fielding, and their pitching was of a similar shoddy grade. The upshot was a 17 to 11 beating.

Everything might have turned out properly if the Sox could have called off the whole thing and made a fresh start after the first inning. In that session they experienced a violent attack of dizziness or something, giving the enemy five runs on four errors and two hits. The distressing fielding flattened Rookie Jack Hallett before he could retire more than one man, but it turned out that his troubles were nothing compared to those encountered by his kid successors, Orval Grove and Joe Haynes.

Hoag Hits Homer, Triple.

After giving the Macks a flying start the Sox tried to catch up by using their bats, but never came close. Dario Lodigiani went on a hitting spree to amuse or amaze his former boss, Mack. Myril Hoag, the recent acquisition, notched a homer and triple, and Bill Knickerbocker tuned in with a single and homer. Taft Wright, in action for the first time this season as a regular, contributed a pass and single. All this and a lot of other things happened to Bill Beckman, who, with a big lead at all times, finally was taken out of circulation when Knickerbocker hit his homer in the eighth.

Knickerbocker was prominent in another way, too. He recorded two errors on the first two batters of the day, and before the inning was concluded the same fever struck Luke Appling and Hoag, causing the aforementioned five runs.

Grove, Haynes Suffer, Too.

The rioting continued but without errors. Grove was dented for two runs in the second, three in the third when Ben McCoy and Bob Johnson hit home runs, and two more in the fourth. After this the Athletics quieted down until the seventh, when they gave Haynes a welcoming blast of five runs, part of which Appling helped to record with his second error.

Knickerbocker fumbled McCoy's roller at the start and did the same on Wally Moses' tap, which should have been turned into a double play. Johnson fouled to Joe Kuhel, Sam Chapman walked, and Dick Siebert belted a single into left, McCoy and Moses scoring. Hoag fumbled the hit, so S. Chapman hiked to third and Siebert to second. Hal Wagner dared Appling to capture a double play grounder, but Luke kicked it into left field, S. Chapman and Siebert counting. Wagner took second on the error and Pete Suder moved him home by singling. This was where Hallett was withdrawn.

The A's Pile 'Em Up.

Grove completed the first inning nicely, but that was the extent of his effective labors. McCoy and Moses opened the second with singles and were bunted along by Johnson. A pass to S. Chapman loaded the bases and when Kuhel went into right to take Siebert's tall fly, McCoy sneaked home. A single by Wagner sent Moses to the plate to round out a 7 to 0 lead. Part of this was taken away in the home half when Wright walked and Lodigiani doubled. They counted on long fly balls.

MANAGERS, PROS HOLD PARTY AT OAK PARK TODAY

Eat, Play and Make Plans for 1941 Season.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Today's the day when the professionals and managers, two most important adjuncts to a golf club, get together for their annual party with members of the Illinois section of the PGA and the Chicago District Club Managers' association, gathering at the Oak Park Country club this afternoon. The event usually is held in the fall, but this year, both groups decided to assemble in the spring. Following a two ball, selective drive contest, the gents will dine together in the evening and discuss plans for the coming season. Manager Chick Bangs and Professional Dick Metz will be the host participants. The event also will mark the local tournament debut of Eddie Bush, who has just joined Oak Park as Dick's assistant. Bush, who has been stationed at Norway, Me., in the summer and at Key West, Fla., in the winter, won several New England tournaments last summer.

The pro-managers' tourney is the first of several arranged by Eddie Gayer of Twin Orchard, President Alex Cunningham of North Shore, Secretary Matt Matteson of Ridge, and their PGA tournament committee. Their inaugural pro-amateur is scheduled for next Monday at Shoreacres in Lake Bluff. The pros will be guests of the club for luncheon and there will be no entry fee.

Golfers of the South District league will open their 1941 campaign at Calumet on June 11, a series of seven matches running thru three months, with the final session set for Idlewild on Sept. 17. A week later, the winning teams in three leagues will gather at Bob O' Link for the CDGA Interclub league championship. Tentative dates for the remaining matches are: June 25 at Edgewood Valley; July 9 at Midlothian; July 23 at Butterfield; Aug. 6 at Ravisloe; Aug. 20 at Olympia Fields, and Aug. 27 at Ridge. South Shore, Flossmoore, and Beverly, which dropped their memberships, have been replaced by Ridge, Edgewood Valley, and Butterfield. Charles Eckstein of Ravisloe, is the new president, and Dr. R. E. Umbenhaur of Midlothian, remains as secretary-treasurer.

The annual meeting of caddy chairmen and caddie masters of the Chicago District Golf association will be held in the La Salle hotel on May 13 at 6:30 p. m. Chief topic of discussion is expected to be the shortage of caddies, due largely to draft calls and new jobs in defense industries.

Chicago tournament golfers are reminded again that entries for the local qualifying rounds of the national open golf championship close on May 13 [one week from tomorrow] at the offices of the United States Golf association, 73 East 57th street, New York City. Prospective entrants are being urged to file their entries as soon as possible, so as to facilitate pairings and starting times for the local rounds, which will be held at Medinah on May 26. Players may practice there on May 19. The tournament proper will be held at the Colonial club, Fort Worth, Tex., on June 5, 6, and 7.

PABSTS CLINCH CLASSIC LEAGUE DIVISION TITLE

The Pabst Blue Ribbons clinched the Sunday division title of the Classic Bowling league by defeating the Ambrosia Beer three times in the Harding Recreation last night. The Pabst's have a four game lead and there are only three more games to be bowled. They shot 979, 1,085, and 1,049 for 3,113, high series of the evening. The Koenig Braus took two from the Michelobs; the Rupperts defeated Schlitz twice, and the Monarchs took the odd from Blatz. Herb Freitag's 666 was high individual series.

A Champion's Progress

Little Realizes Ambition as He Makes Walker Cup Team; Tells How to Control Downswing

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on golf by Lawson Little, National Open champion, who, before becoming a professional, was the only man in history to win the British and American amateur championships in two consecutive years.)

BY LAWSON LITTLE.

Any notions I might have had that my quarter-final effort in the United States amateur tournament of 1929 made me a finished golfer were dissipated by my national record in the next few years. In 1930, at Merion, where Bobby Jones completed his Grand Slam, I qualified at 145, three shots back of Bobby, who was tournament medalist, too. In the first round I met my old friend, Dr. O. F. Willing, who had given me the A B C's of chipping and putting years before at our old club in Oregon. I won after a tight struggle that went 20 holes. In the second round, I lost a 4 and 2 match to Gene Homans, who ultimately went to the final against Jones. As for the rest of 1930, I was medalist in the California amateur tournament and won several small sectional events there.

Nineteen hundred thirty-one was a big disappointment to me. I had been playing well all summer, winning a number of tournaments in California and Colorado. Dad had since been transferred to Fort Wayne at Cheyenne, Wyo., which was just 100 miles from Denver. The big disappointment came right here in Chicago, at the Beverly Country club. Like many another youngster, I came to the National amateur with big ideas about going far in a tournament that for the first time had no Jones in it. Imagine my chagrin when I failed even to qualify for the match play—the first and only time this ever happened to me. And a few other members of the younger set also found that Bobby's absence didn't mean anything. At the end of the week, they all found themselves back of none other than Francis Ouimet, whose victory delighted me, remembering our battle at Pebble Beach.

Wins Northern California Amateur 2d Time.

In 1932, I followed about the same pattern as the previous year, winning sectional events in both California and Colorado. I neglected to state that I had entered Stanford university in the fall of 1930, which accounted for my ability to play in California as well as Colorado. Things began to look up for my game the following year. I won the Stanford university title and the Northern California amateur, the latter for the second time.

In the 1933 Trans-Mississippi amateur at the Broadmoor course in Colorado Springs, I finished runnerup to Gus Moreland of Texas, whose own competitive star was climbing fast, for he had won the Western amateur the year before and had been made a last minute selection on the American Walker cup team as a result. I had never forgotten my boyhood remark to my father—that I would one day make the Walker cup team. In the final of the Trans-Mississippi, I lost to Moreland, 2 up, after a really great match. Gus played the last ten holes in 34 strokes. I was one under par for the same stretch, yet lost four of those holes. In the same year I won the Denver and Broadmoor invitationals, and was medalist and winner in the Colorado State.

The amateur, of course, was still my chief objective, and I began preparing for it by leading the Denver sectional qualifiers at Cherry Hills. I finished with 139, despite a two stroke penalty on the 36th hole. It was the second best qualifying score in the country.

Little Develops More Confidence in His Game.

By this time I had developed a great deal more confidence in my game. In the second round of the amateur at Cincinnati's Kenwood club, I put out a fine player in Maurice McCarthy, 2 and 1, and then defeated the defending champion, Sandy Somerville of Canada by the same score. I entered the semi-finals against George T. Dunlap Jr. of New York, the ultimate winner. George beat me, 4 and 3, but I felt that by reaching the last foursome of the national I had taken my first big step toward the championship.

I returned to school at Stanford that fall, after stopping off in Chicago for a visit with Tommy Armour of Medinah, who did wonders with my iron game. One evening in January, 1934—the date was the 7th, and I certainly ought to remember it—I walked in to my fraternity house—Chi Psi—at Stanford. All of the brothers leaped up and began yelling "Congratulations!" Knowing the gang as I did, I figured a typical fraternity gag was in prospect.

"No," they said, "you've been selected on the Walker cup team." And there it was in the local papers. It appeared the official letter from the United States Golf association, informing me of my selection, had gone astray, and my first knowledge of my good fortune came from the newspapers in the Chi Psi house.

Start Club Down by Unwinding Movement

Yesterday I made a few suggestions about the start of the swing for newcomers to golf. I believe we had taken the player to the top of the backswing. Now that the player has warmed up his body and his wrists are fully cocked and he is ready to hit the ball, he must start the club down by an unwinding movement of the body to the left. He starts down by unwinding the left hip or jutting the left hip to the left. This sets up a pull on the left arm down into the hitting area. The final movement before the ball is struck is the uncocking or hitting with the hands. It's highly disastrous to fly cast, or hit with the hands from the top of the swing, because a very important source of power is immediately lost. It is of utmost importance to reserve the wrist action until late in the downswing. Then comes the striking with the hands. The right elbow comes down close along the right side in this downward action. If the right elbow gets out too far from the body during the downswing, the player will hit from the outside in cutting across the ball causing that old favorite, the slice.

Hagen, Dubs Meet Tonight in Return Bout

Floyd Hagen, 19 year old lightweight of St. Paul, will attempt to prove a previous knockout scored over Harvey Dubs was not a fluke when he meets him in an eight round rematch tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Despite his inconsistent record before and after the first meeting with Dubs, who also is 19 years old, Hagen is confident of beating the Canadian again.

If Harvey displays the form he showed in stopping Billy Seward in one round in Marigold arena on April 21, Hagen is in for a rough night. On that occasion Dubs performed like a champion while flooring Seward seven times before the referee stopped the bout.

In their first encounter a left hook to the jaw sent Dubs to the floor in the second round for an eight count. After regaining his feet Harvey ran into a blow which floored him for the count.

Supporting matches:

Gordon Palmer, Minneapolis, vs. Johnny Trotter [6], 175.

Tony Sopko, Indiana Harbor, vs. Speedy Schaefer [4], 155.

Fritz Von Schacht, Milwaukee heavyweight wrestler, will oppose Karol Krauser in the windup bout of a mat card this evening in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Walter Palmer, protégé of Lou Talaber, former middleweight wrestling champion, is paired with Milt Olson in one of four other encounters. . . . The Illinois Athletic commission's budget for the ensuing fiscal year has been reduced 30 per cent, according to Sheldon Clark, chairman of the board.

FEDERAL RESERVE POLICE CAPTURE TWO DAY SHOOT

The Federal Reserve bank police team won a two day shoot sponsored by the American Police Pistol association on a range at Lawrence avenue and County Line road yesterday. It scored 999 points. Members of the squad were Otto Widemark [258], Frank Kent [251], Perry Walsh [250], and Archie Sexton [240].

The two man team event was won by Sergt. Arthur Hohhof [267] and Dewey Ritenour [264] of the Chicago Park district with 531.

CARDINALS RALLY IN 8TH TO TAKE 9TH IN ROW, 3-1

Bunch Five Hits to Beat Braves, Hold Lead.

Boston, Mass., May 4 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals bunched five of their six hits off Manny Salvo in the eighth inning today to gain their ninth straight victory at the expense of the Boston Braves, 3 to 1, before 18,197. Salvo had kept the opposition hitless until the sixth, when, with two out, Don Padgett got the first of his two singles.

One putout had been made in the eighth when the league leading Cardinals started. Jimmy Brown singled and went to second on a wild pitch. After Terry Moore beat out a grounder, Padgett drove in the first St. Louis run with his second single. Brown and Padgett then advanced on a passed ball and Salvo loaded the bases by purposely passing Johnny Mize, who drew three walks during the game. After Enos Slaughter singled, Moore scored and Padgett was thrown out at the plate. Catcher Walker Cooper, brother of Mort, the winning pitcher, then hit safely to bring in Mize with the Cards' third and final tally. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 4 (AP).—Before a crowd of 27,015, the Dodgers went down to their second defeat in 13 starts today, losing to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 4, as the Brooklyn defenses fell apart behind Luke Hamlin.

Hamlin had won three games up to this afternoon, but in the third inning Peewee Reese bobbled a ball to pave the way for four unearned Pittsburgh runs. Hamlin, removed in the last half of that inning for a pinch hitter, thus was charged with the loss.

After Reese's error Elbie Fletcher walloped a home run with two men on base, and another tally came in on Bob Elliott's single and a double by Vince DiMaggio. A double and single gave the Pirates another in the fourth off Bill Swift, who also was hit for a homer by Debs Garms in the seventh. Pete Reiser hit a two run homer for the Dodgers in the ninth. Olsen to Face Schumacher and Giants Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 4.—Vern Olsen, who hasn't had a call recently, will pitch for the Cubs here tomorrow in the middle game of the series. Hal Schumacher is the probable Giant nominee.

Charley Root, who was hit on the left great toe by a line drive from Dixie Walker's bat in Brooklyn yesterday, did not go to the Polo Grounds today. A broken bone is suspected.

Claude Passeau says the misery in his back isn't so bad. He had his tryout today and became the sixth Cub pitcher. He may pitch in the Cub-Giant final here Tuesday, or in the Philly opener Wednesday.

Cubs Lose, 9-4, to Giants and Drop to 7th

Sturgeon tallied on Nicholson's fly to Mel Ott. Novikoff and Herman supplied easy outs. That was all for the Cub offense, except that homer of Dallessandro's in the ninth which changed a 9 to 3 defeat into a 9 to 4 defeat.

French's term was short and unhappy, a two inning span in which his own fumble gave the Giants a run in the first inning and four runs won him a bath after the second session.

A Homer Inside Park.

Frank Demaree started to warm up Larry's bath by opening the second inning with a single to center. Orengo flied to Novikoff and Melton sacrificed, after which Morrie Arnovich walked. Whitehead doubled to left, scoring Demaree, then Young drove the ball against the left field wall. Novikoff, who never played billiards much, chased the bounce into center field, while Arnovich and Whitehead trotted across the plate. Young had to slide home to make it a homer. Danning flied to Novikoff to end French's work for the day.

The Cubs interposed their first two runs at this juncture to make the score 5 to 2. Tho there were no runs in Paul Erickson's three innings, Paul made work for himself by suffering the first batsmen to get on base in each of the innings. The fifth gave Paul his toughest span. Young was hit by a pitched ball, but Danning flied to Dallessandro. Ott doubled to left, Young stopping at third. Jurges bounced to Hack and Young was out at the plate, Hack to McCullough. Demaree walked, loading the bases. Then Orengo was called out on strikes.

The Parade Is On.

Ken Raffensberger preserved the 5 to 2 ratio in the sixth. Then the Cubs made one run in that semi-fadeout in the seventh and the score became New York, 5; Cubs, 3.

Raffensberger walked Young at the start of the home seventh, then Danning flied to Nicholson. Ott singled to center, Young taking third. Jake Mooty replaced Raffensberger, and Jurges executed the squeeze play, Young scoring on Bill's bunt to Mooty. Demaree singled to left, scoring Ott, and Orengo walked. Melton singled to center, Demaree scoring. Then Tot Pressnell reached the arena. Arnovich singled to left, scoring Orengo.

third were put over quickly. McCoy spanked his homer against the upper deck in right. Moses singled over second and was on his way immediately, pursued by Johnson, who deposited his fifth homer of the year into the left field second story. The Macks' fourth was a bit drawn out altho only two scored. Siebert singled, Wagner walked and Suder singled. That meant one run. The other followed shortly on a wild pitch by Grove.

Lodigiani survived on a fumble by F. Chapman at the start of the domestic fourth and with one out Hoag arched his homer into the left center field pavilion. The next bit of Chicago scoring came in the sixth. Lodigiani doubled to left center with one out and after two were gone scored on Hoag's triple into the right field corner. Hoag sauntered in on George Dickey's single to right.

Details of the Athletics' five run seventh are hardly necessary. It is enough to say that nine men batted. Haynes walked two of them. Appling helped with an error. Siebert hit a single, Wagner a double, and Al Brancato a triple. By way of keeping things moving the Sox scored two in their half on a pass to Appling followed by singles from Kuhel, Wright, and Lodigiani. They added the last three in the eighth, two on Knickerbocker's homer to left.

DRIVER FALLS OUT OF CAR; IT ROLLS BACK; KILLS HIM

Climbs 20 Foot Bank, Then Tumbles.

Anthony Nischan was killed early yesterday when his car fell back upon him from a 20 foot railroad embankment it had climbed after he had fallen out. Police believe that Nischan, a machinist, 26 years old, who lived at 2539 North Shore avenue, had fallen asleep at the wheel.

He was driving north in the 4600 block of North Cicero avenue when his car suddenly swerved to the left, cutting directly in front of a southbound motorist. Nischan's car struck a steel pole on the left side of the street with such force that all the doors sprang open and Nischan fell to the ground.

Loses Momentum and Falls.

The driverless car then climbed almost to the top of the embankment before it lost momentum and fell back upon the driver. The other motorist, who narrowly escaped being struck by Nischan's automobile, called the police. He is William Fritz, 5018 Pensacola avenue.

Vernon Lowell Frey, 18 years old, was killed by a hit and run auto in Burnham avenue near 182d street in Lansing. Frey was on his way home to 191st street and Burnham avenue in the suburb. Police found the broken lens of a headlight at the scene. From it they established the model and make of the car that struck the youth.

Michael Nessler, 47 years old, of 623 Madison street, a laborer, died last night in County hospital of injuries received Saturday when he was struck by an automobile at Madison street and Union avenue. The driver was Thomas Lysko, 31, of 5353 Oakdale avenue.

Unidentified Woman Killed.

An unidentified woman about 40 years old was killed when the car in which she was riding with two men, brothers, struck a pole at 2278 Elston avenue. The brothers were taken to the Swedish Covenent hospital, where both were found to be critically injured. They were identified as Walter Rhode, 34, of 2623 North Troy street, a machinist, and Victor Rhode, 40, a stationary engineer.

Fred Toppel, 43, of 5035 South Homan avenue, died in the County hospital of injuries suffered April 4 when he was struck by a truck at 51st street and Western avenue. The driver was Finley Sheppard, 23, of 12231 Stewart avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 289 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 220 were killed in Chicago, where 7,344 were injured in the same period.

GREYHOUND BUS STRIKE HOLDS UP SERVICE IN EAST

Cleveland, O., May 4 (AP).—All service on Pennsylvania Greyhound lines was halted today by protest walkout of American Federation of Labor bus drivers, maintenance and terminal employés, affecting approximately 1,400 workers and a daily passenger load averaging 18,700 riders.

S. R. Sundstrom, president of the lines, said quiet picketing was in progress in many cities.

The system spreads out between New York and Norfolk in the east to Chicago and St. Louis in the west.

The walkout was called by the Amalgamated Association of Street Electrical Railway and Motor Coach Employés, in a dispute over a new contract. The union has been requesting a closed shop. Company and union negotiators tonight left for Washington ,D. C., for further discussions aimed at conciliation.

ONE DIVISION AFFECTED.

Only the Pennsylvania division of the Greyhound bus lines in Chicago is affected by the walkout. Runs between Chicago and Indianapolis, Ind., were canceled yesterday, but all other schedules were maintained in and out of Chicago, company officials said. No picketing or disturbance was reported here.

THE HONEYMOON OF THE PANDAS, IF ANY, IS OVER

The supposed honeymoon between Mei-Mei and Mei-Lan, the giant pandas at the Chicago Zoölogical garden in Brookfield, seems to be over, Robert Bean, assistant director, sadly announced last night.

"After 36 hours Mei-Mei and Mei-Lan appear to be tired of each other," he reported.

It is Assistant Director Bean's opinion that the honeymoon hasn't even really started. Anyway, he said, the pandas romped around for hours yesterday, but not as friskily as they did the day before. Nevertheless, said Bean, they've got to live together from now on and maybe, he said hopefully, they'll raise a family.

Six U.S. Soldiers Injured in Panama Night Club Rioting

West New York, N. J., May 4 (AP).—Maj. William Addams Welch, 73, sometimes called the father of the state park movement, died today of a heart ailment. He was director of the national council of state parks.

Three years ago he headed a committee to resurvey the city parks of Chicago.

As a park and construction engineer, Welch designed the state parks of Virginia and Kentucky, laid out a portion of the Appalachain trail—the nation's longest foot trail running from Maine to Georgia—and fixed the boundaries of the Great Smoky Mountains national park.

Fire Destroys Hangar at Northwest Airport

Fire yesterday destroyed a one story corrugated iron hangar at the Northwest airport, three miles west of Glenview, causing damage estimated at $5,000. Two airplanes which were being repaired in the hangar were hauled to safety. Miss Grace Johnson, 6538 Lakewood avenue, owner of the airport, said the blaze apparently originated in a tool shop at the rear of the hangar. It was extinguished by volunteer members of the Glenview rural fire department.

FOUR ARE KILLED, FOUR INJURED IN FIVE CAR CRASH

Chicago Man Among Dead in Accident.

Kenosha, Wis., May 4 [Special].—Four persons were killed and four others injured seriously tonight in an automobile accident involving five cars on U. S. highway 41, seven miles west of Kenosha.

The dead were Eugene J. Branski, 39 years old, of 5416 North Long avenue, Chicago; Adam Saladis, 45, of Kenosha; Saladis' wife, Eva., 42, and their son, Adam Jr., 11. Seriously injured are Mrs. Branski, Donald Saladis, 8, brother of Adam Jr.; John Bernatovicz, 60, of Kenosha; and William Leski, 45, also of Kenosha.

Car Gets Out of Control.

The crash occurred when the automobile in which the Saladis family, Bernatovicz, and Leski were riding sidewiped a car driven by Louis Prezmbel, 2826 Walnut street, Chicago. The Saladis car, out of control, then crashed head-on into Branski's automobile.

George Panattoni, 27, of 1614 South 50th court, Cicero, Ill., approaching the scene, slammed on his brakes to avoid striking the two wrecked automobiles. As Panattoni slowed down his car was hit from the rear by the automobile of Orville Oberhelder, 27, of Chicago. The impact forced Panattoni's car into the wreckage. Occupants of all the cars except Branski's and the Saladis' vehicle were uninjured or hurt only slightly.

Man and Girl Killed.

An hour before the five car crash, Miss Gertrude Bohanan, 21, of Kenosha, a softball pitcher on a girls' team, and Stanley Jensen, 24, of Kenosha, were killed when Jensen's motorcycle struck an automobile driven by John Serpe, 36, also of Kenosha. The accident occurred on Wisconsin Highway 42 three miles south of Kenosha.

NEW BILL GIVES U. S. HARD GRIP ON SHIP LINES

Makes Roosevelt Industry's Czar.

New York, May 4 [Special].—Described as the most drastic proposal of its kind ever submitted in peace time, the Bland bill pending in congress was interpreted here today by shipping officials as a move of the federal government to assume control of all American and foreign shipping operating from United States ports. It would make President Roosevelt virtual czar of the shipping industry thru the maritime commission, they said.

Rep. Schuyler Bland.

The bill, introduced last week in the house by Representative Schuyler Otis Bland [D., Va.], chatrman of the house merchant marine committee, would set up a system of warrants or permits, similar to that used in Great Britain.

Controls Charter Rates.

Shipping executives explained the bill was designed to give the maritime commission authority to control all charter rates, particularly those of foreign flag shipping, and to insure the uninterrupted controled movement of war materials and vital commerce at specified "reasonable" transportation costs.

The bill received scant attention last week during the Washington excitement attending President Roosevelt's expressed determination to assemble a vast pool of shipping from which vessels may be drawn and shunted into "emergency" routes, but it was described here as a clear cut step in the administration's plan to bolster its power over all shipping.

Rules Subsidized Lines.

To a material extent maritime commission control already is established in subsidized shipping over which the commission may exercise supervisory activities virtually tantamount to government operation. But the lack of power over independent lines that are not obligated to the United States government thru subventions has been a "weakness" in the American merchant marine from the standpoint of the Roosevelt administration's "all out" aid to Britain's program.

This insufficiency has been pointedly referred to by official British representatives in the United States who have expressed the wish that the United States might place itself in a position to dominate all American shipping, just as London has, since the war began, taken all British shipping out of the hands of private ownership.

Leads to Allied Czar.

The Bland bill, if passed, would place the two governments in identical positions in this regard, in the opinion of the New York shipping experts, with the exception that the United States would not control the insuring of the vessels as Britain does. The moment would then be at hand when the United States could respond to British suggestions for a centralization of operating activities and even an "allied czar" in whose hands would rest the power of moving and directing ships and routes to the common purposes of the two nations.

Vessels complying with regulations set up by the maritime commission under the Bland bill would be given priority in the matter of obtaining loading, unloading, and lighterage facilities as well as the use of ship repair yards, pier space and procurement of bunker oil or coal. This means that ships denied warrants for failure to comply with regulations could be tied up indefinitely in United States ports by being forced to wait until ships on the priority list were serviced.

Price Situation Main Problem Confronting Steel Industry

Cleveland, O., May 4 (AP).—Effects of the coal shutdown will be felt for months in the steel industry, but "many consider the price situation the major problem because of freezing of prices without previous freezing of wages," the magazine Steel said today.

"The attitude of one steelmaker in being willing to go along for three months at frozen levels without protest is by no means typical of the industry," the weekly review said. "One of the smaller, nonintegrated producers has announced withdrawal from the market pending approval at Washington of his plea for an exception in his favor; such has already been granted to at least one maker.

Prevents Peak Production.

"The coal strike will be felt for many months. It is predicted that the industry cannot again reach the March peak of virtually 100 per cent practical capacity until fall. Shortage of coal made a scarcity of coke; that in turn of pig iron, and lack of pig iron caused greater drain on scrap, making that scarce.

"Far reaching inventory controls on steel and nonferrous metal producers, dealers and consumers are announced from Washington. If coöperation in carrying out the controls is not given OPM lets it be known that strict mandatory systems will be put into effect."

Output Rate 95 Per Cent.

Steel reckoned ingot production last week at 95 per cent of capacity, down one point from the preceding week. Three districts' rates rose: New England, 3 to 95; Detroit, 9 to 88, and Cleveland, ½ to 92½. Pittsburgh dropped, 3 to 93; eastern Pennsylvania, 1 to 95; Youngstown, 5 to 89, and Cincinnati, 2 to 90½. Unchanged were Chicago, 96; Wheeling, 88; Buffalo, 90½; Birmingham, 90, and St. Louis, 98. The magazine's composite price for steelworks scrap was stationary at $19.16 a ton.

SNUFF MAKER.

I was surprised to learn the other day that there is quite a substantial snuff industry in this country. I read in a market letter that the major snuff companies have had fairly stable earnings even thru the depression. Please give me a description of the George W. Helme company.
—M. B.

Answer: Of the three major producers of snuff, George W. Helme company, New York City, makes about one-third of the total output in this country. Its products are sold under 35 brands, mostly in the southern states.

The company was formed in 1911 as the result of an antitrust decree dissolving the old American Tobacco company. Factories at Helmetta, N. J., and Yorklyn, Del., employ about 500 workers. Sales have ranged from 5½ to 7½ million dollars a year.

Altho the company is engaged primarily in the snuff business, it has almost one-half of its assets invested in securities. About one-fifth of its total income before depreciation and taxes was derived last year from investments.

The more than 7½ million dollars invested surplus is maintained by the company as a fund to provide capital for future expansion, to pay dividends in excess of earnings, and to provide working capital.

Altho profits of the company declined last year because of higher taxes, an irregular downtrend in earnings has been noted since 1930. However, dividends have been maintained despite lower profits. The results in the last five years follow:

1936	$1,874,012	$6.82	$7.00
1937	1,678,104	6.01	7.00
1938	1,639,036	5.84	7.00
1939	1,666,645	5.96	7.00
1940	1,473,517	5.15	7.00

Dividends on the common stock thus far this year amounted to $4.50 a share. Payments on the shares have been made consistently since 1912. Preferred stock dividends have been paid regularly.

Capitalization consists of 240,000 shares of $25 par common stock and 33,829 shares of 7 per cent noncumulative preferred stock of $100 par value.

REVEAL SCHEME TO RULE PACIFIC POWER OUTPUT

Monopoly Would Be in Ickes' Hands.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Ore., May 4.—Behind the flaming curtain of war, Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and New Deal zealots are waging a stealthy campaign to capture control of all electric power in the Pacific northwest—and with it control over economic and political life. THE TRIBUNE'S investigation also disclosed their drive to take over the ground floor of this region's vast storehouse of other resources.

Odds favor the Ickes social planners in their ambitious scheme, even according to those who most want to halt it. Belatedly the people are awakening to the tremendous implications of the federal hydro-electric projects which they cheered only a few years ago. There are defense plans against the socialistic program, but no unity regarding them.

Some Opponents to Give In.

Some captains of private companies, despairing of victory, have forsaken the fight to salvage as much as possible for their tens of thousands of investors. Others go on fighting, altho they say that for the sake of stockholders they no longer can afford to wage open combat.

A fortnight ago, James H. Polhemus, president of the Portland General Electric company, publicly took note that Ickes had shifted from step-by-step infiltration tactics toward an "all-out war" to exterminate the private utilities. He called upon the industry to rise and meet the challenge, even tho the government is a "monstrously frightening opponent."

Forty-one per cent of all the potential water power of the United States is in the Pacific northwest, and three-fourths of this is found in the Columbia basin. Perhaps the hand that rocks the cradle still rules the world, but many here believe that the hand that "pulls the switch" can gain complete control.

200 Million as a Starter.

Ickes has had two bills drafted for presentation in the present session of congress which aim at acquisition of all power facilities. Under one of these bills, a proposed Columbia Power authority could use 200 million dollars as a starter to take over private companies in the name of local government ownership.

Making Ickes virtual overlord of the entire Pacific northwest, should the legislation pass, is this sentence: "All of the powers of the authority shall be exercised by the administrator subject to the direction and control of the secretary of the interior."

The geographical scope of both bills is indicated by the definition: "All portions of the United States which are situated within the states of Oregon and Washington, or which form part of the Columbia river basin, or which are within economic transmission distance of the generating facilities within the foregoing areas producing power available for sale under this act."

Bigger Than TVA.

This might conceivably be stretched to include Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, and perhaps portions of other states. Sometimes referred to as a "little TVA," the CPA actually would be a "big TVA" with the additional curse of being ruled by a man 3,000 miles away, it is said here.

Directly under Ickes is Dr. Paul J. Raver, former professor of public utilities at Northwestern university. Raver gave up his brief chairmanship of the Illinois Commerce commission to become power administrator for Bonneville dam in August, 1939. A year later the power from Grand Coulee dam also came under his administration.

The Ickes regime, with its increasing functions and functionaries, has taken offices in eight buildings here. Dr. Raver was interviewed in the World's Fair style building across the river from the downtown district, where the walls are decked with "art photographs" of transmission lines and generators.

Expects End of Private Lines.

"My own appraisal as to what will happen is that there will be a complete selling out of all private power companies in the northwest," Dr. Raver said.

"The plan has moved along to the point where I can make that prediction. I don't know how long it will take, but these properties will be acquired along such lines as offer the possibilty of changing from private ownership without destroying property.

"The basic idea is that it is better for business, and for the public, to take all facilities instead of only a part, such as the distribution system. If community public ownership districts bite off pieces of private systems, it means expensive engineering studies and court action. We want to get away from that."

After some hesitation, Dr. Raver said he was advocating that this be done. Congress already has provided that Bonneville-Grand Coulee power be sold over government-owned transmission lines—not private lines—he said, and that preference be given to publicly owned companies.

Question Rolls Raver.

Asked whether the purchase of private companies means that the government is now out to "buy customers for its new power plants," he answered angrily:

"That's yellow journalism. We don't have to buy customers. But we've been instructed to give 50 per cent of the power to local communities, and how are you going to do it, at cost, and not give profit to some New York holding company?

"This is an entirely new economy, a pioneering thing. It is an entirely different conception of power than these private companies have. You can call it socialism if you want, but it's damn good sound economics for the United States!

Warns of Illinois Peril.

"This will be the center of the light metals industry of the United States before we're thru. But you never would get the development of these ores until you had cheap electricity. I know Illinois power rates well enough, and it's about time Illinois wakes up or it will never get any further industrial development."

In talking about the various industries which have entered the region for "cheap electricity"—partly paid for by taxpayers all over the country—Dr. Raver swung the spotlight on another important factor. It is the dependency of these industries, with their great pay rolls, upon the continued favorable consideration of one man—Secretary Ickes. Dr. Raver did not mention this factor, however.

2 FEDERAL UNITS CO-OPERATE ON CIVILIAN NEEDS

Washington, D. C., May 4 [Special].—A joint statement was issued today by E. R. Stettinius Jr., director of priorities, and Leon Henderson, head of the office of price administration and civilian supply, calling for the close coördination of the operations of the two offices they head.

"We recognize military and defense needs as our first and most important consideration and responsibility," the statement said. "Without conflicting with the production of military defense needs, we must provide the necessary supplies of materials and commodities required for civilian use and for protection of public health, welfare, and safety."

RHEEM'S $500,000 CHICAGO PLANT TO OPEN TODAY

Rheem Manufacturing company's second Chicago plant, rushed to completion at a cost of $500,000 so the original plant could be devoted to armament production, will be opened formally today, about 65 working days after pouring of the foundation.

Production on the company's regular line of products, including oil, paint, and chemical drums, automatic water heating systems, and related items, has begun in the new plant.

The other plant is producing practice bombs for the government and also is making fins for demolition bombs.

BIG U. S. PRINTING JOBS TO BE LET IN CHICAGO SOON

More than $2,000,000 worth of government printing business will be offered to the Chicago graphic arts industry in July, according to A. E. Giegengack of Washington, D. C., public printer of the United States.

Giegengack yesterday met leaders in the industry at the Morrison hotel. He said that the armament program has made it necessary to take bids on a large part of the government's printing needs.

25,000 ILLINOIS MINERS RETURN TO WORK TODAY

Owners, Union Sign Temporary Pact.

Twenty-five thousand miners in 70 Illinois bituminous coal mines will return to work this morning after a month's shutdown caused by the deadlock between the United Mine Workers of America [CIO] and the Illinois Coal Operators' association. A temporary agreement between the opposing forces was reached here late Saturday night.

Ray Edmundson.

But Ray Edmundson, state president of the UMWA, announced that his organization would call upon Gov. Dwight H. Green this week to dismiss Martin P. Durkin, state director of labor. The miners' organization wants Durkin ousted because of a ruling by the state unemployment compensation board that the miners are not entitled to compensation for the time they were idle.

Basic Pay $7 a Day.

The miners will return to work on the new $7 basic daily wage scale now in effect temporarily in the northern Appalachian coal district. The old scale was $6.

Other points in the temporary agreement were:

1. Working conditions shall be the same as those of the wage agreement which expired March 31, provided that work may cease upon order of the UMWA if and when northern Appalachian mines receive a similar order.

2. The agreement shall continue in effect until a permanent agreement is reached.

Alabama Mines Tied Up.

Still to be reached, however, is an agreement covering 21,000 miners in Alabama. They quit work on April 1 along with Appalachian area and Illinois miners. In Alabama the main dispute was said to center around the miners' request for $1 increase in pay.

In Washington the defense mediation board apparently made little progress in week-end conferences toward settlement of the contract dispute between the CIO United Automobile Workers and General Motors corporation.

Abandon AAA Program.

May 4, 1941.

AFTER farming for three years in compliance with the government's AAA program, the Fox river farm this year will abandon the program and operate solely under the direction of its managers.

A survey of the results of farming for three years under the direction of federal officials revealed that the farm crop program has become so unbalanced as to make the work extremely difficult. Lowered production under the program has lessened the possibility of an operating profit.

Government farm policies have become so paradoxical that the farm operators find it impossible to comply with all the federal demands. On one hand the government has preached an economy of scarcity for eight years. Soy beans, hay land, and small grains were plowed under at the farm; corn acreage was lessened; hog production was cut down.

Plowing Under Nullified.

On the other hand the farm operators applied lime to the fields; poured fertilizer into the soil, and turned under thick bluegrass sod in answer to a demand that the soil be built up. As a result of this enrichment the fields produced almost twice the amount they had previously, nullifying the effect of plowing under the crops.

Recently there came a call from the department of agriculture for more and fatter hogs, more chickens, more eggs, and more dairy products as a result of the national preparedness program. To answer this demand, the farm would have had to put more acres into corn and small grains to feed the hogs, chickens, and cows.

However, the AAA refused to allow an increase in these acreages unless the farm agreed to forgo benefits of the program such as corn and wheat loans and parity payments.

In comparing their crop plans for the coming year with the allotments given by AAA, the farm operators, Clarence and Louis Thurow, found they would have to place more land in hay and pasture than they could possibly use.

Of the 1,332 acres on the farm, 235 acres would be placed in hay and pasture. This is more than the length of the haying season will permit the Thurows to handle.

There is no need for the Thurow brothers to plow under some of this excess pasture land, as the fertility of their fields already has reached a high point where additional plowing under would merely mean a financial loss to them.

To take advantage of this land they would have to stock it with cattle. However, under the program, they would be unable to raise enough feed to finish out the stock they would graze. They would be forced to go out and buy corn from other sources, paying a price that would put their feeding program in the red. They can raise their own feed much cheaper than they can buy it, but the AAA will not allow them to do so.

Normal Plan Will Aid Farm.

Under their normal crop plan, and with the crop rotation they have always practiced, they can grow all the corn they need and still follow a soil building program that will benefit the farm, the Thurows report.

"I signed with the program at first because I thought that patriotic duty demanded it," Clarence said, "and because I believed that it was an emergency program designed to temporarily help those farmers who were failing to make money and who were destroying the land. Now it has become a permanent program and is dictating more every day how we should run the farm."
